SEIZE HOOCH BOATS

FIFTY TAKEN IN DETROIT RIVER

DETROIT, Mich, July 18.—Fifty additional motor boats were seized in Detroit river today by federal authorities, in their campaign to stop smuggling of booze from Canada to Detroit.

Today's seizures bring the total of captured boats to 300 since the campaign was started last week.

Where no booze was found aboard the craft under suspicion, seizures were made on charges of violations of federal navigation laws as to boat equipment.

ATHLETICS A FOE TO BEAUTY

SAN FRANCISCO, July 18.—Competive athletic contests between girls of today on American play grounds is ruining the physical appearance of American womanhood, in the opinion of Dr. R. T. McKenzie, author, sculptor and anatonomist.

Dr. McKenzie told university women here that changing habits of physical exercise is rendering the modern woman particularly in the eastern states, flat chested and knock kneed and that these defects of feminine beauty were becoming worse instead of better.

"Athletic contests among girls such as are practiced at present cannot help but eliminate feminine beauty," Dr. McKenzie told an audience composed of university women.

GANNA DODGES THE REPORTERS

NEW YORK, July 18.—Madame Ganna Walska played hide and seek with newspaper men for two hours on the White Star liner Olympic and then when they tagged her she was about to roll away from the dock in her big limousine and wouldn't even smile.

"Sorry boys, but no interviews today," her husband, Harold F. McCormick said.

The boys went down the bay and boarded the ship, parking themselves en masse in front of the opera singer's stateroom, No. 339. Some watched her studio downstairs on E deck, others watched at the gang plank but she eluded them all when she slipped thru with a veil over her face. She was dressed in black.

Passengers said she spent the entire voyage in seclusion. She ate all her meals in her cabin. Once or twice she went promenading on the deck with one or two of her maids.

McCormick met her at the dock and they greeted each other affectionately.

Thomas Eagen, Broadway promoter, who wants to star Madame Walska in a musical play this winter, was at the dock but was unable to see her.

WHO CAN MILK THE MOST COWS?

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 18.—Senator elect and Mrs. Magnus Johnson expect to stage a cow milking contest when they reach the senator's farm near Kimball late today.

Mrs. Johnson always helps with the milking and this morning they got into an argument over who could milk the most cows. Political conferences were halted by the dispute.

"I can milk more cows than you can any day," Mrs. Johnson said to the new farmer labor senator.

The contest was agreed upon.

"I have an idea I will get terribly lonesome," said Mrs. Johnson referring to her forthcoming trip to Washingto with her husband. "I have always wanted to see how they do things down there but I won't stay long."

Mrs. Johnson said she planned to take her three youngest children with her. The three oldest will remain at home to un the farm.

The senator elect's wife was born on a farm and has lived on one all her life. She is a typical outdoor farm woman of the northwest.

GOVERNMENT IS CHEAPER

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A reduction of $77,980,370 in the ordinary expenses of running the government, exclusive of public debt operations, was shown in a statement issued today by the treasury comparing expenditures during the fiscal year ending July 1, 1923 and the previous year.

Ord Pioneer Is Dead.

ORD, Neb., July 18.—W. A. Wright, well known miller and old time resident of Ord passed away at his home here Sunday morning. "Dad" Wright, as he was better known, was one of the active community workers of this section, a splendid singer, member of the famous Valley county male quartet.

PASTOR'S JAW PUNCHED FOR KISSING WOMAN

Because he gave Mrs. Priscilla Hague, a bride of a few weeks, a kiss of "fatherly affection," Rev. George L. Paine, prominent Boston clergyman was punched in the jaw by her husband, Lieutenant Wesley McLaren Hague, U. S. navy. Dr. Paine performed the wedding ceremony for the Hagues. He was badly cut in the encounter with the irate naval officer, and later apologized.

WHITE COLLARS JOINED FARMERS

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 18.—The defeat of the republican party in Minnesota Monday was as much a "white collar revolt" as a "farmer revolt," a vote analysis by political observers revealed today.

Senatof-elect Magnus Johnson carried seventy-four of eighty-seven counties in the state. Almost every county where there is a large city went to Johnson.

Governor Preus carried Minneapolis and Hennepin county by a plurality of only 594 votes—and he had expected to win with the Minneapolis vote. St. Paul went to Johnson by nearly 5,000, while Duluth gave Preus good support. St. Louis county gave Johnson a plurality of around 4,000.

Governor Preus placed his faith in the first and second congressional districts, but so far as the republican party is concerned, both went "all wrong."

The hardest blow to the republicans, perhaps, was the complete turnover in Martin county, on which they have always relied. Friends of Johnson considered his plurality of 150 in Martin county one of the outstanding features of the election. The farmer-laborites heretofore had been unable to get much support from there.

In the first district, where Preus hoped for a plurality in every county, four went to Johnson.

The first and fifth districts were the only ones that gave Preus an advantage, every other district going to Johnson.

Effect of the special election on the general election next year, is the subpect of much discussion now. The farmer-labor party will not rest. It has already begun preparations for next year's campaign.

"We have proven to the people that we can win," said Henry G. Tiegen, manager of Johnson's campaign. "We will have no trouble in the future. The farmer-labor party is here to stay."

FRANCE WON'T BUY WHEAT

Domestic Crop and Imports From African Colonies Will See Her Thru.

PARIS, July 18.—France may not need to purchase wheat abroad this year, Le Temps estimated this afternoon.

The French wheat crop is expected to reach 75,000 quintals and it will be possible to import another 5,000,000 quintals from the French colonies in northern Africa, a total sufficient for the domestic needs.

A quintal is 220.46 pounds.

UNIVERSITY CASE TO GO TO COURTS

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 18.—The fight for "academic freedom" in the University of Tennessee, will be taken to the courts and the legislature if necessary, leading alumni declared today. Plans for carrying on the battle which has resulted in dismissal of seven professors were announced following action of the board of trustees upholding the stand of Morgan in discharging the instructors for "refusal to co-operate" with his administration.

Only two members of the board voted against Morgan's policy. They were Bolton Smith, sr., father of one of the Amherst students who refused to accept his diploma in protest against the dismissal of President Meiklejohn of that institution; and Governor Beay.

The total number of professors discharged by Morgan was brought to seven with the dismissal of Mrs. A. M. Withers.

MASKED MEN IN A CONFESSION

TULSA, Okla, July 18.—Twelve masked men, in a darkened room, "confessed" to a reporter that they abducted and tortured with acid Mrs. Pearl Hayter, Monday evening and a year ago whipped George Petropol, who the woman claimed was her husband, the Tulsa Tribune stated today.

The twelve masked figures claimed to be prominent business men of Tulsa and Sapulpa. The article said:

"The leader of the group talked, while the figures circled the darkened romm." The reporter wrote the conversation down.

"He said: 'We kidnaped the Hayter woman Monday night from the streets of Tulsa. She was taken to a secluded spot in an automobile. There her hair was cut off and acid applied. Later we drove her to Okmulgee and turned her loose. The acid was not used to burn her severely, but to forever mar her beauty. This story is given so that the public may know the truth and all others may take warning.'"

The leader of the group denied the masked band was composed of members of the ku klux klan.

RUTH HITS TWENTY-SECOND.

DETROIT, July 18.—Babe Ruth knocked out his twenty-second home run of the season in the seventh inning of the game with the Tigers here this afternoon. Holloway was pitching.

A Mighty Secret.

Today for the first time E. H. Sampson of Moline told of the burial of John Wilkes Booth, Lincoln's assassin. Yet he declined to say where Booth's body lies, and he's the only man in the world who knows.

"For fifty-eight years that secret has been buried in my breast," he declared. "I took a solemn oath never to tell. I will die still keeping that oath."

Sampson and Colonel Lafayette Baker, later General Baker, dead these twenty years, buried Booth's body. At the command of E. M. Stanton, secretary of war, they removed the remains from a man-of-war and somewhere interred them.

"The body disappeared in the darkness," said Sampson, "and we returned in the darkness. Only the elements and I know where we went and what we did."

Probably no ohter living man can relate the events of April, 1865, with such accuracy as Sampson.

"I was a member of the secret service," he said, "and was in Ford's theater the night Lincoln was shot. I saw the president's head drop forward and saw Booth trip over the American flag draped on the president's box. I helped pursue Booth to the barn on Garrett's farm, saw the match applied to straw straggling from the left door, glimpsed the assassin pacing up and down inside, and heard Boston Corbett fire the shot that mortally wounded him.

"Where did we bury it? No; I can't tell. Father Time is stalking me with his scythe, but when he cuts me down, he'll take the secret too. The world will never know."—Moline Dispatch to Washington Star.

On Quitting Smoking.

You blow upon your porridge to cool it. You blow upon your fingers to make them warm. A most singular and contradictory ability in this, to blow both hot and cold. Yet that is what the medicos did at San Francisco, in convention assembled, when some asserted that tobacco is a harmful weed, and others that an indulgence therein is the mildest of vices. They are hopelessly at variance as an assembly of octogenarians, where one ancient attributes his vigorous years to the pipe, and another to the fact that he never has smoked.

The fact is that tobacco is a personal problem. This being so, it is not in the least remarkable that various conscientious medical men defend it, while others attack. Undoubtedly we have, at such time, the opinion of contented smokers arrayed against the counter-opinion of discontented smokers. For it is apparent that the physical evidence, as discovered in patients, must here have been weighed by the personal viewpoint, with different constructions accordingly placed upon it. Which leads to the unbiased observation that one should be his own doctor when the question of smoking or not smoking rises for settlement.

They threw a flagon of water on Sir Walter Raleigh, did they not, when they found him with his pipe? But that valiant adventurer was not prevailed upon to quit. And since that time considerable cold water has been decanted upon the habit without apparent effect. The smoker who finds, for himself, that tobacco is injurious to him, that it detracts from the normal enjoyment of life, has received a warning that should interest him far more than the moralizing of his wife or the warnings of his physician. If he does not make such a discovery, he is of the fortunate ones equipped by nature to worship the dusky goddess, but if he does discover an injury he has much to gain by quitting.—Portland Oregonian.

Mr. Bryan Says

Mr. Bryan says there is no doubt in his mind that the democratic party will have a dry platform in 1924. He thinks Mr. McAdoo "stands a good chance of being the presidential nominee." If Mr. Bryan had named some little known man, as he did when he recommended Governor Shafroth of Colorado in an earlier pre-convention campaign, there would be reason to believe he was again after the nomination himself. But Mr. McAdoo, many besides Mr. Bryan think, will have better luck than he had in 1920. In effect Mr. Bryan says to the leaders of his party: "Adopt a dry platform, or I will bolt. I'll support Mr. McAdoo on a dry platform."—Worcester Telegram.

SAYS BRITAIN SHOULD QUIT

Out of Place in Reparations Affair, Beaverbrook Says.

WOULD LET FRANCE SETTLE IT

Must Otherwise Submit to France and Look Ridiculous.

London Express Publisher Urges Devoting Atention to British Empire Rather Than Europe.

Great Britain should "clear out of Europe" and let France "settle her own account with Germany by her own methods," Lord Beaverbrook, proprietor of the London Express, declares in a statement on the eve of publication of the British note to Germany. Beaverbrook, a Canadian by birth, is one of the most powerful figures behind the scenes of British politics, having helped to make and unmake prime ministers and the governments.

By Lord Beaverbrook

LONDON, July 18.—Premier Poincare of France has anticipated Premier Baldwin's proposed reparations note by a speech at Senlis in which he declares without reservation or evasions that France has come to the end of all concessions she is prepared to make. He is emphatic in his determination not to go back one inch from the Ruhr occupation policy and all it implies, and he sees no hope of settlement by other means. He lays stress in his belief of Britain's honesty of purpose and expresses grief at the thought that differences over this momentous question of reparations cast evena shadow on Anglo-French friendship, but in the end he is firm in purpose.

High hopes were entertained that the Baldwin government would in some way or another not defined, put an end to the deadlock of the Ruhr and reparations situations Such hopes never had any foundation in fact and never can have as long as the French people support Poincare's policy.

For this ferment of expectation the government itself is largely responsible by suggesting that Baldwin might succeed in bringing France around where Bonar Law failed, whereas in reality, as the Daily Express pointed out at the time, his only contribution to this subject was "a new brand of optimism."

Having set this note for themselves, the minister must not blame the country if it exhibits some disappointment now that Poincare's speech has ended the high hopes of this nation.

The reception of the British note is now a foregone conclusion and France will reply within a week from now that she intends proceeding against Germany in the future exactly as in the past.

Britain has two alternative courses before her: first, she can submit to the French decision which will make her recent action, with its loud press talk of retaking the lead in Europe once more, look rather ridiculous and humiliating; second, she can definitely break with France and conclude what must finally end in an economic alliance with Germany against a former ally.

This last proposition has only to be stated nakedly for all men to see how impossible it would look to British public opinion—at least for many years to come.

If then these were the only alternative courses, the British foreign policy would seem to be in a bad way—in fact practically bankrupt.

I, however, believe there is a third and wiser plan open to British statesmen whereby we should not quarrel with nor be subservient to France nor yet ally ourselves with Germany. It is to clear out of Europe, and while taking what we can get from European markets, devote our surplus energies to the peaceful development of the British empire. This we shall never be able to do as long as our national attention is concentrated in Paris or Berlin and the national pocketbook is drained by insuring safety with armaments against some European war into which we shall be dragged inevitably unless we cut completely clear of the tangle.

France thinks she can successfully settle her account with Germany by her own methods. Let her see to it. Britain should not quarrel with her on this account nor yet uphold her.

Britain, without ignoring her commerce, should turn to developing her own markets within the empire and overseas.

This was the essence of Bonar Law's foreign policy and I do not believe his successors in Downing street can improve on it because it was founded on the same rock of facts and hard reality as the world in which we live.

ATTEMPT TO FIND BONDS

FREMONT OFFICIALS MAKE FOUR SIMULTANEOUS RAIDS.

Nothing to Implicate Raid Victims in Nickerson $26,000 Bank Robbery Case Altho Places Carefully Searched.

FREMONT, Neb., July 18.—Fremont officials investigating the myster $26,000 robbery of the First bank of Nickerson two weeks ago made their first open attempt to find traces of missing bonds in four simultaneous raids in Nickerson, Council Bluffs, and Omaha late Tuesday evening. Their efforts were apparently futil.

The Nickerson bank robbery has proved one of the most baffling cases in the history of Dodge county. The sum of over $5,000 in cash and $20,000 in customers bonds were taken from the vault and an inner safe without harming the combinations leading the officials to suspect an inside job.

Besides the lockers, new cement floor and twenty-two new shower baths are being installed at a cost of $2,000.

Improvements and new equipment for the boiler plant are expected to cost between $6,000 and $7,000. The chemistry laboratory is being enlarged and new equipment provided so as to accomodate more students. Most of the offices are being renovated, and a general redecoration of the home economics building at the agricultural farm campus is under way. STATE MONEY NOT ADVANCED

ACCOUNTANT FINDS NOTHING IN HIS RECORDS TO SHOW IT.

Federal Government Binds Itself to Pay Only After Money Has Been Expended Upon State Highway System.

"With all due respect to Governor Bryan," said State Accountant Sommer in a statement made Wednesday, "I think he is laboring under a misapprehension of the facts with respect to money he has been quoted in the newspapers as saying the state has advanced for the federal government in connection with the state highway system construction."

Mr. Sommer spoke in reply to a statement of the governor recently that he had been unable to learn why the state auditor and the state acounant allowed a half million more or less of state funds to be paid out for the federal government's share of road construction costs on various projects, part of which he said it is doubtful if the state will ever get back.

Mr. Sommer says that according to his findings the state has advanced no money for the federal government. He says it is true that the state, up to the present time, has put more of its money into roads in Nebraska than has the federal government, but he quotes from the basic agreement between the state and the federal government to show that the federal government pays only on vouchers showing the amount expended on any project, either after completion or monthly. Mr. Sommer says:

Thus, it will be seen that the federal government pays only after the money is shown to have been expended. The federal road money is not a trust fund advanced by the federal government to to be used generally for road purposes, but rather in the nature of a reimbursement for money arleady expended, whether by the state of the contractor, but expended in accordance with the project agreements entered into between the state and the federal government.

Every road project involves the making of two separate agreements. First, an agreement between the state and the federal government, that a crtain road be built, with an estimate of the cost, and providing that after the work has been done and done according to the federal specifications, the federal government will contribute one-half of the cost. The federal money is paid to the state and deposited in the state treasury, to be spent by the state. The contractor has nothing to do with this contract, and the federal government, of course, does not pay anything to the contractor.

Next, the state enters into agreements with contractors, generally at least two; one for grading and one for culverts. Sometimes there are additional contracts for bridges and guardrails. The federal government is no party to these agreements. The state assumes all the liability, as far as paying the contractors is concerned, except in a few cases where counties also contribute.

It is the duty of the state to make "payment promptly after the contract has been completed and the road improved"; this without regards to whether any payments have been made on this particular project by the federal government. Therefore, I say that all the money which the state has paid to contractors for road building has been paid to meet the direct obligations of the state and no money has been advanced for the federal government. The projects agreements with the federal government are mere side contracts to enable the state to assume the liability of the roads.

There is no provision that the contracts shall be submitted to the state auditor for his approval and they have not so been submitted. If the contracts were inexpedient that is no fault of the state auditor.

For the 1921 contracts there was addedd to the article pertaining to "Final Payments" as above this proviso:

"Provided however that no warrants will be drawn for monthly or final estimate in excess of the cash on hand in the state and Federal Aid road."

Even under this amended section, the state would be required to make payment promptly as long as there was any money in either the state or federal aid road funds. There is nothing in these contracts requiring the contractor to wait for part of his money until the federal government has paid its quota on that particular project to the state.

From the above it will appear that the governor has this road matter all wrong, when he insists that the state has advanced about a half a million dollars for the federal government. He evidently has made no personal study of the matter but acted on hearsay and jumped at conclusions.

The road contract as above may work out to the disadvantage of the state. A proviso: that the state should not be required to pay more than say, one half the cost of the project promptly and requiring the contractor to wait for the balance until money to apply on that particular project has been received from the federal government, would be better no doubt.

The state auditors department is noat in a position to see that the federal conditions are complied with. This duty rests with the department of public works, which is under the direct control of Governor Bryan.

HIGH WATER HELD TRAINS

SERIOUS DELAYS BECAUSE OF FLOOD CONDITIONS.

Four Hundred Feet of Track Weakened Near Bartley on the Burlington—Caused a Service Derangement.

Burlington morning weather reports told of heavy rains between Oxford and the state line west. High water was reported from many places in that section. Some damage to the track was done in the vicinity of Bartley, which delayed a large number of thru trains.

No. 10, due at Lincoln at 12.58 a. m. was delayed nine hours. Two sections of No. 3, and No. 6 were delayed about five hours each.

Burlington reports showed that rain descended as far east as Red Cloud, being particularly heavy in the Republican valley section.

The main line of the Burlington was out of service near Bartley from early evening until after 2:30 a. m. No. 2 from the west was not delayed, arriving in Lincoln on time Wednesday.

The weather bureau reports showed heavy rains had fallen in the twenty-four hour period ending 8 a. m. Wednesday in the western part of the state. Showers reached as far east as Holdrege and Broken Bow. At Holdrege a quarter of an inch fell and at Broken Bow one-third of an inch. Culbertson reported one and 2-3 inches, North Platte more than an inch and a half and North Loup half an inch. A light rain fell at Valentine and light rains reached as far west as Denver and Cheyenne.

"JEKYLL AND HYDE" STUDENT IS HELD

Harry R. Pine, seventeen, recent graduate of the Camden, N. J., county high school, is held in Camden on the charge of having been implicated in a number of daring house robberies. The boy, preparing for the ministry, comes from a wealthy family and was always well supplied with spending money. Only two weeks before his arrest he filled the pulpit of the Union Methodist Episcopal church in Camden, in the absence of the regular pastor.

CROMWELL IS TRIAL VICTOR

CHARGE OF DRIVING CAR WHILE DRUNK DISMISSED.

Police Judge Holds That Complaint Made Was Not Proved But Expresses Misgivings About Case.

Lyman Cromwell, twenty-nine, who says that he is in the employ of State Sheriff Carroll, was dimissed by Police Judge Chappell Wednesday forenoon of charges of driving an auto while under the influence of liquor and destroying property. The grounds given for the dismissal were "not sufficient evidence to convict on the charges."

"I uphold the workings of the state department but there's something rotten somewhere," the judge declared.

Lloyd Harmon, eighteen, was dismissed of a charge of drunkenness. The case grew out of an auto accident that occurred at Thirty-second and R streets at 1:30 a. m. Saturday when an auto driven by Mr. Cromwell is alleged to have crashed into the rear end of a Ford coupe parked at the curb. A bottle of liquor and a loaded thirty-eight calibre revolver, claimed to have been in the Cromwell auto at the time were introduced as evidence in police court. Testimony conflicted as to whether Mr. Cromwell's breath smelled of liquor. He told on the stand that the bottle of liquor was purchased at the home of Henry Gilbert, colored, on North Ninth street. He said that it was to be used as evidence against Mr. Gilbert.

Mr. Harmon and Mr. Cromwell were injured in the accident and were taken to their homes in University Place. The latter sustained a broken collar bone and carries his arm in a sling. Mr. Cromwell said that he took a small taste of the socalled evidence when it was purchased. Dr. H. Cook of University Place, who dressed the wounds of the defendants after they were taken to their homes after they told the court that they were not under the influence of liquor. Several witnesses testified that they smelled liquor on Cromwell immediately after the accident.

Charles A. Crist, 3150 R owner of the parked coupe which was wrecked, said that the car driven by Cromwell hit the left side of his machine and turned over. "I took a quart bottle half full of liquid and the gun from beside their auto," he said. "I smelled alcohol and believe Cromwel was under the influence of intoxicating liquor." "Harmon was lying on the parking and apparently was badly injured," he said. E. F. Jenkins, 3214 R, Kenneth Nelson, 3200 R, Agnes Anderson, 3144 R, and Mrs. Wilson, 3223 R, all told of hearing the crash. Some said that they smelled liquor at the wreckage and some saw the bottle on the pavement.

Officer H. J. Knepper, who investigated the accident shortly after it occurred, said that they were seriously hurt and permitted them to be taken to a surgeon. After they left he says he found the bottle of liquor and the revolver. "To tes if I drank a very small quantity of the liquor while acting as a prohibition agent."

ARGUED FOR A DISMISSAL

HTARING IN THE NEBRASKA HOTEL BANKRUPTCY CASE.

Harman and Craig, Former Officers and Stockholders, Want the Federal Court to Dismiss the Proceedings.

A new chapter in the Nebraska Hotel and the Nebraska Building and Investment company bankruptcy proceedings began Wednesday morning before Federal Judge Munger. Attorneys for Clarence E. Harmon and Jesse V. Craig, former officers and stockhilders of these corporations seek to have the bankruptcy action dismissed on the ground of irregularity and fraud. This is being resisted by the attorney for the trustee in bankruptcy, F. B. Baylor and attorneys for creditors.

They allege that the proceedings were perfectly legal and that if Harman and Craige wanted to get in they should have done so at the time that proceedings were undertaken in the United States court. A petition to declare the hotel and investment company bankrupt was filed in February 1921 and in November, 1922 the case was adjudicated. The attorneys appearing in the case are John Rine and Alvin F. Johnson of Omaha, C. C. Flansberg, C. J. Campbell, John M. Stewart, Paul Good and Fred C. Foster of Lincoln. John J. Ledwith, attorney for E. C. Eppley was also present, as well as F. B. Baylor the trustee in bankruptcy. Judge Munger gave Mes sers Flansbur and Campbll leave to file amendments to their petition.

Attorney John Rine argued that proceedings that led to declaring the Nebraska Hotel and the Nbraska Building and investment companies bankrupt were perfectly legal and that the board of directors had full power to pass a resolution showing the insolvent condition of the corporations. He declared that the petitioners because of their failure to institute such at the time or about the time that bankruptcy proceedings were undertaken have lost their rights to come into court and asked that the court hold that it has no jurisdiction and dismiss the case. It was perfectly plain that acts of bankruptcy had been committed and that Craig and HHarman had consented to such action. To make a case the petitioners would have to show that they had not been advised that bankruptcy proceedings were pending or that the case had been adjudicated without their knowledge or consent. He produced several court decisions which he contended sustained his argument. If Harman and Craig knew of the bankruptcy action or of the adjudication of the case in the United States court it was their duty to make it known. They could not now come in and plead ignorance.

Attorney C. C. Flansburg for the petitioners, said that of the cases cited by Mr. Rine, with one exception they were those brought by creditors and not by stockholders or officers of the corporations. He charged fraud and irregularity in the proceedings which led to action in bankruptcy being instituted. He alleged that Bartley and others, fearing that they would be sued on their bonds after the Lancaster county district court had been reversed by the Nebraska supreme court, connived and conspired to throw the two corporations into bankrupt court. He characterized the action of the four small creditors in asking that the companies be adjudged bankrupts, as the action of persons whose claims had not been acted upon or approved. He declared that this court should not entertain jurisdiction because the case comes before it tainted with fraud and thru irregular proceedings.

Attorney C. J. Campbell argued that the action of the board of directors in passing a resolution which resulted in bankruptcy proceedings was illegal. The resolution was not signed and therefore was not lawful or binding. These directors were without power to act. They owned but a small portion of the stock and

SAYS BRYAN SHOULD LOOK

State Accountant Says Only a Small Part of the Grading Is All That May Have to Be Done Over Again.

State Accountant Sommer said Wednesday that the people may get the idea from Governor Bryan's talk that the state is in danger of having to rebuild the Niobrara-Spencer road in Boyd county at a cost of something like $70,000, and that there is a conspiracy to cheat the state, so insidious that even the governor cannot ferret it out. He says "the governor might easily have found out how the contractors came to be paid so as to enable him to put the blame where it belongs, if he would only

Y. M. C. A. LEADER DIES

L. WILBUR MESSER.

IS NO STATE ACCOUNTANT

GOVERNOR BRYAN SAYS APPOINTMENT WAS ILLEGAL.

Asserts Auditor Marsh and Governor McKelvie Acted to Prevent Incoming Governor From Doing His Duty.

In regard to the legality of the appointment of State Accountant C. A. Sommer by Auditor Marsh and confirmation of that appointment by Governor McKelvie just before the latter retired from office, Governor Bryan said Wednesday:

"I have seen no legal opinion by the legal department of the state that such an appointment and approval is legal, and I assume no such statement has been or will be made by the attorney general, as such an opinion would be a political opinion and not properly classified as a legal opinion.

"It can hardly be claimed, inasmuch as only a day or so elapses between the convening the legislature and the legislative canvass of election returns and inauguration of state officers, that it was necessary during that short interval of have a state accountant appointed and approved to protest the interests of the state.

"The only reasonable excuse for the appointment and approval was to prevent the governor elected by the people of the state from exercising his duties as required by law and prevent him from being in a position to carry out his constitutional duties and see that proper audits are made of all state activities and that an efficient and economical government is maintained.

"The appointment was to prevent the people of the state from getting what they voted for. There is no legal accountant now in the employ of the state and any audits made, until a state accountant is properly appointed and confirmed, will be without legal authority and effect, and the fact that there had been no audit of the road department, which needed auditing, is further evidence a state accountant is badly needed."

WOBBLIES RIVAL A. F. L.

Both Start Campaigns to Organize Steel Workers in Chicago and Gary, Ind.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Rival campaigns to organize steel industry employes were started here today by the American federation of labor and the industrial workers of the world.

William Hannon, successor to William Z. Foster, was in charge of the American federation of labor headquarters. The organization has about $70,000 to finance the campaign.

More than 100,000 I. W. W. circulars are being distributed over the Calumet steel region, which includes Gary, Ind. The I. W. W. urge the steel workers to "join our union and strike."

DIG POTATOES AT KEARNEY

Quality of Crop This Year Will Be Superior Altho the Acreage Is Reduced.

KEARNEY, Neb., July 17.—Digging of spuds in the Kearney district is getting under way. Some potatoes have already been dug, chiefly for domestic consumption and carload lot movements may be expected to start forward for marketing shortly. The yield this season will average in excess of 150 bushels per acre, it is estimated and the quality will be superior to that harvested last season. The acreage has been reduced to estimated 4,000 as against 6,000 last season.

JOHNSON HASTENS TO AID FARMERS

Joins Brookhart In Call For Quick Action By Congress.

WOULD FIX PRICES OF GRAIN

Sees Ruin Ahead of Farmers Unless Help Comes.

TO CALL A CONFERENCE SOON

Farmer Senator Says Agricultural Prosperity Cannot Be Neglected With Safety to the Nation.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 18.—Senator elect Magnus Johnson, Minnesota today joined Senator Brookhart, Iowa, in a demand that a special session of congress be called "to save the wheat farmer from ruin by low prices."

Johnson also announced that he is considering calling a conference of Senators and congressmen from wheat states to discuss the situation which he fears will result in a national calamity.

The proposed special congress should establish a minimum wheat price and otherwise correst economic conditions, the farmer-laborite victor in Monday's senatorial election, declared.

"Setting a minimum price on wheat would not be a permanent solution of the farmers problems of course," he said. "However for this year and next I believe it is an essential step in order from ruin.

"Thousands of farmers in North Dakota and other sections have gone bankrupt in the last two years as a result of deflation. They had to to stave off starvation. It served to give them a new start, but it was a poor one because conditions this year are much worse than they were last year. Thousands more face banqkruptcy and those who have gone thru it are facing ruin. The nation cannot ignore the farmer's condition. Our national prosperity depends upon the ability of our producers to keep on producing. When production stops, prosperity ends and the producer goes to the poor house, if he can't find a job."

He is quite certain, he said, that a conference of senators and congressmen will be called and President Harding will be asked to call a special session.

WITH PRESIDENT HARDING, SEWARD, Alaska, July 18.—President Harding is unimpressed by the political menace seen in the Minnesota senatorial election, which he thinks resulted entirely from local conditions.

Warning of Senator Brookhart that something must be done for the farmers if the republican administration expects to win in 1924 has also left the president unmoved. He will not embark on any sudden farm relief program. Mr. Harding is of the opinion that efforts to save the farmers or any other class by artificial means, such as congressional legislation, is as futile as for a man to attempt to lift himself by his own boot straps.

Farmers and all other classes must work out their own salvation with whatever help the government can give in the normal regular way, the president feels.

If the farmer spokesmen, like Brookhart, will frame specific recommendations for helping the farmers, they will be given administration consideration, Mr. Harding assures, but he holds that congress has already gone about as far as it can in helping agriculture and time must now be given the new farm credits act to work before any additional farm legislation will be sponsored.

Should farmers ask railroad rate reductions for their products they will be told that their interests in that regard are bound up with the interests of the entire nation and that congress will be invited to deal with the matter in December.

The administration has a program for the coming year mapped out and does not intend to be stampeded into modifying it. This program is to be withheld until early in 1924 as groundwork for some items to be laid in the coming session of congress. Brookhart's demand for a special session, therefore, will go unheeded.

Mr. Harding declined to discuss Henry Ford.

JOKE RAID PROVES SERIOUS

Omaha Men Arrested After Searching Friend's House and Finding No Hooch.

OMAHA, July 18.—A "joke" raid by W. R. Robinson and Charles Clark, on the home of their friend, Emil Bolenic, proved disastrous and landed both men in jail.

According to the story told police, Robinson and Clark went to the Bolenic home and after making a search, they upbraided Bolenic's daughter for having no liquor on the house.

Police investigated and arrested Robinson and Clark, who are being held for investigation. The men told police they were just playing a joke on Bolenic.

PRESIDENTIAL POT BOILING.

Victory of Magnus Johnson, farmer-laborite in Minnesota's senatorial election, set a-wagging political tongues on the subject of a possible "compromise" candidate between President Harding and the extreme "left wing" in the senate, when 1924 republican nominations are considered.

In Washington Frazer Edwards finds a group of "stand-patters" talking of Hiram Johnson, now on the high seas homeward bound from a European trip, as the nominee.

In New York, Paul R. Mallon has learned that progressives in the republican ranks are rapidly agreeing upon Judge William S. Kenyon of Iowa as the man to succeed President Harding as the republican standard bearer.

REPORT ON LINCOLNSHIRE

STATEMENT SHOWING CONDITION OF CLUB'S FINANCES.

Stockholders May Clean the Slate of Debts by Remitting $11.65 for Each Share of Stock Held.

A statement has been made to the stockholders of the defunt Lincolnshire club, also to the creditors, showing the present status of the club's affairs. The report is made by Fred D. Stone, agent of the creditors' committee, and shows that $5,529.00 is needed to discharge all obligations of the club and its members. The club issued 475 shares of capital stock; therefore, if each stockholder remits $11.65 for each share held by him the creditors can be paid in full. The verfied claims against the club amount to $8,677.64. A sale of the club fixtures and collections of accounts brought in $4,300.54. Preferred claims and expenses to be paid amount to $1,151.90. This leaves $5,529.000 to be made up by the stock holders in order to clean the slate.

The creditors of the Lincolnshire club were sent, on July 16, a check for 30 per cent of their claims against the club and a statement of cash received and disbursed as follows:

Cash Received.
Cash in bank	$ 194.56
Sale of fixtures	4,050.00

TO PAY HEALTH DIVIDENDS

Wisconsin University Women Incorporate to Build Bungalow on Lake.

MADISON, Wis., July 18.—A corporation which pays dividends in health, not in wealth, has been formed at the University of Wisconsin.

Members of W. A. A. women's athletic association at the university have organized a non-profit stock company to build a bungalow on Lake Meadota, where they may rest and play. The cottage will cost $3,000 of which about half has already been subscribed by members of the organization, faculty members and alumnae who will be entitled to use the clubhouse.

There will be a large living room with fireplace. A balcony surrounding the whole house, and will provide thirty-six open air bunks for tired athletes. A kitchen and a bedroom for the chaperone will be the only other rooms in the cottage.

Field hockey, swimming, volley ball, bowling, basketball, indoor and outdoor baseball, track, dancing and tennies are some of the sports that Wisconsin's coeds take part in. Interclass contests are held at frequent intervals and a "telegraphic meet" in all track events is run off with Northwestern University's fair speedsters, annually.

CABINET WILL STUDY ALASKA

SECRETARIES HOLD HEARINGS AT SEWARD AND ANCHORAGE.

President Not Expected to Favor Spending Money to Stimulate Artificial Boom in Northern Possessions.

ABOARD PRESIDENT HARDING'S TRAIN, ENROUTE TO SEWARD, Alaska, July 18.—President Harding is going to have a cabinet meeting on Alaskan problems soon after boarding the transport Henderson for the return to the United States.

Secretaries Work, Wallace and Hoover will complete their intimate study of fisheries, coal, railroad and general mining with hearings at Anchorage and Seward. The data will be assembled and discussed in a cabinet conference with these officials and with unofficial cabinet newspapermen who have studied Alaskan conditions as searchingly and painstakingly as the officials.

The president will work out a general plan for his Alaska speech to be delivered at Seattle July 27. He has very clear impressions and convictions regarding Alaska as a result of his personal contact on the coast and the interior. These he intends to frankly express in his speech. His brief speeches in Alaska have been confined to generalities and he has repeatedly stated that he would make no promises to the territory while a study of its problems was under way.

Among his Alaska convictions in the Seattle speech Harding will include that the country's future is a matter of gradual and probably slow development for the coming decade at least, that it would be a mistake to try to "Bull" Alaska or give it prosperity by artificial means, including the use of government money; that the people here should be allowed to work out their own destinies without too much interference from Washington: and that Alaska should be given a directing voice in Washington in the bureaus dealing with Alaskan affairs.

President Harding today received an official invitation from the governor of Honolulu to visit there on the Henderson before returning to Seattle. The invitation probably will be declined.

No comment was made on the early returns of the Minnesota election, tho members of the unofficial party made no secret of their belief that Preus alone is to blame for the regular republican defeat. His ambition to get himself into the senate is held as the cause for further reduction of the already slender republican margin. If Preus had appointed Sidney Anderson to the senate immediately after Nelson died there would have been no contest, one prominent official said.

The president is due to arrive at Seward late today and will go aboard the Henderson.

No. 3—Breathing Under Water.

The first thing for a Water Nymph to learn is how to breathe correctly. No one can advance very far with swimming or learn any of the difficult strokes, without learning to breathe correctly. You would learn it by experience in due time, anyway, but by mastering this principal first you avoid many of the difficulties which frequently beset beginners. For instance, when you do not breathe correctly you tire very easily and frequently get strangled on unexpected mouthfuls of water.

Breathing while swimming is just the reverse of breathing for other exercises. Breathe in thru your mouth and exhale thru your nose. You can exhale while under water but can inhale only while your mouth is above water. Try this simple breathing exercise. Open your mouth, draw in a big breath, then stoop down with your head under water. Then exhale thru your nose. Big bubbles of air will rise to the surface when you exhale under water. Then raise your head above water, open your mouth, inhale, and repeat until the exercise becomes easy. At first you will want to simply hold your breath while under water, but you will soon learn to exhale.

You will not strangle if you go under water with your mouth open. Try sticking your head under water with your mouth wide open and you will see that it has no effect on you at all. It is only when you inhale under water that the water gets into your windpipe and causes you to choke. And do not become desperately frightened if you do occasionally strangle a little while learning. A little will not hurt you. You can stand much more than you think. You can keep your eyes open under water too, and look about you.

Tomorrow—Learning to Float.

UNEASY OVER BRITISH NOTE

FRENCH FEAR SCRAPPING OF VERSAILLES TREATY.

Believe Anything But Use of Force in the Ruhr Will Destroy Entente—Mediator Refuses to Talk.

PARIS, July 18.—French official circles are displaying apprehension over the forthcoming British note to Germany, a draft of which is to be forwarded here. Only the most reserved comments are forthcoming.

A considerable portion of the press sees in the British move to reach agreement on reparations thru other means than force in the Ruhr, a scrapping of the Versailles treaty and an end to the entente.

The Journe Industriale, which speaks for the industrialists and financiers of France, charges Great Britain with seeking to create two interpretations of the Versailles treaty—one a British version bringing in the other allies; another isolating France and depriving this country of support of the allies against Germany.

"Britain would nullify the treaty as regards France, but continue herself to benefit thereby," the paper says.

Premier Benes of Czecho-Slovakia, who has been busying himself with attempts at mediation, left today for Brussels, refusing to discuss success of his efforts thus far.

FRENCH ROAST MOVIE MEN

Say American Producers Haven't Kept Up With Improvement in Public Taste.

PARIS, July 18.—French movie films haven't made the slightest progress in the last ten years. American films are crude in conception altho lavishly executed. This is the verdict of Andre Antoine, the great Paris theatrical manager.

"The taste of the theater public has been steadily developing for many years," said Antoine, "but the movie people haven't done anything to keep pace with it. As far as they are concerned, we are still in the days of the film based on elementary detective tales.

"In spite of the immense wealth in the hands of the American producers, which enables them to indulge in expenditures impossible in France, they have not brought anything new to the movie from the viewpoint of art. Men like Griffith spend millions of dollars on a production. They get tremendous effects of course, but their scenarios are mere hackneyed repititions of the situations of the old stage.

"Dramatic authors of today cannot change this. We need a new generation of artistic thinkers, freed from ancient pseudo-literary baggage, who will be able to take advantage of the special facilities for expression which the screen gives. More than that, the business of making movie films must be taken out of the hands of men who are in it for the sole purpose of making millions."

GIRL SHOOTS AUNT WHO SLANDERS HER

Family Feud Blazes Up in Missouri When Bertha Hancock, Twenty, Avenges Self With a Shotgun.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., July 18.—The Hicks and the Hancock family feud, which has smouldered for years in southeastern Douglas county, blazed anew with the alleged shooting by Bertha Hancock, a pretty twenty-year-old school teacher of her aunt, Mrs. John Hicks.

The girl, in jail at Ava, is held on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. A charge from a shotgun tore off Mrs. Hicks' left arm and her condition is serious.

Bertha said her aunt had been running down her character for some time, and witnesses said before the shooting, she told Mrs. Hicks:

"You'll have to eat those words."

SAFETY DRIVE IN DETROIT

Newspaper Campaign Credited With Lessening Number of Automobile Accidents.

DETROIT, July 18.—A great safety campaign is under way in Detroit.

Public sentiment is being aroused and the campaign is showing results in the decrease of automobile accidents, according to police.

Three local newspapers have thrown every effort into the campaign, each printing column after column of safety propaganda.

One paper fostered a boulevard stop system, resulting in the city council passing an ordinance. Another paper opened and operated at its own expense free automobile inspection stations. Inspection of the mechanism of automobiles resulted in discovery of many faulty machines.

The third paper started a "safety contest," giving prizes for letters making suggestions of how to make the streets safer.

Huge Graft System Discovered, Beating Government Out of Thousands of Pesos.

MEXICO CITY, Mex.—A huge graft system has been formed by a number of officers of the army, according to reports received by the secretary of the treasury.

Under the system the nation is being defrauded of thousands of pesos, it is stated.

Officers are placing false names on the rolls as their soldiers and are pocketing the salary sent to pay these fictitious soldiers, it is claimed. Investigation is being made.

WARMINSTER, England, July 18.—Miss Gertrude Young won the third prize at a local charity bazaar, entitling her to a free shave every day for a year.

DAUGHERTY IS AFTER I.H.C.

CHARGES HARVESTER COMPANY WITH BEING TRUST.

Petition for Dissolution Filed—Pacific Coast Manufacturers and Growers Are Next in Line.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—The federal government's trust busting drive today was in motion with renewed vigor.

Following a lull of several months during which no suits were filed, the department of justice has now gone into the courts with a petition asking the dissolution of the International Harvester Corporation, which it charges continues to operate in restraint of trade despite decrees ordering its activities curtailed.

Within the next few weeks, similar actions will be taken again. Pacific coast cement manufacturers and raisin growers, and probably fish canners and lumber men, it is understood. Certain manufacturers of automobile accessories also are said to be on the slate for government attack.

Attorney General Daugherty put in motion the campaign against "industrial octopuses" soon after he took office. Among the anti-trust actions filed in the last two years are those against Northwest Lumber associations, Ohio glass manufacturers, pottery makers and the Southern Pacific railroad.

WASHINGTON ON VACATION

Hughes and New Hold the Fort as President, Congress and Court Escape.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Official Washington is a desert. The United States government is on a vacation. President Harding is in Alaska and congress is out of town. The supreme court is silent.

Standing as bulwarks of "duty before all" are two lone cabinet members who announce that they will stick it out on this line if it takes all summer." They are secretary of state Hughes and Postmaster general New.

Secretary of State Hughes, who remains here all summer, finding relief from well known Washington heat only thru his residence at the summer home he maintains on the outskirts of the city.

Postmaster General New, who also intends to stick to Washington all summer.

Secretary of War Weeks, who will spend as much time, if not more, on periodic trips to his home in the mountains of New Hampshire, than in Washington.

Secretary of Navy Denby, who is spending a month or so of vacation at his summer home on one of the lakes of Michigan.

Attorney General Daugherty, who is leaving shortly for the Pacific coast to join President Harding.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who is now in Europe.

Secretary of Labor Davis, touring Europe.

Secretary of the Interior Work, who is accompanying President Harding on the Alaskan trip.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover who joined the President on the coast and accompanied him to Alaska.

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, also with the presidential party.

MARRIED AT ELMWOOD.

Hulfish-Coakley.

ELMWOOD, Neb., July 18.—The marriage of Miss Grace Hulfish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Hulfish of this place and William Coakley of Louisville was solemnized Sunday evening at the home of the bride's parents with only relatives present. Rev. Mr. Sala of the Methodist church read the marriage lines.

Preceding the ceremony Miss Margaret Culver of Bethany sang "Because" and "At Dawning."

The bride wore a dress of white silk canton crepe and silver lace and carried a bouquet of rosebuds. She is a graduate of the Elmwood high school and has been a teacher the last three years.

Mr. and Mrs. Coakley will make their home in Louisville.

$500,000 SUIT SETTLED BY AGREEMENT

MRS. DAVID G. JOYCE

David Gage Joyce, millionaire lumberman, has settled his differences with Edward E. Esch, automobile salesman, who dismissed his suit for $500,000 damages filed against Joyce eighteen months ago on charges that Joyce by lavishing expensive gifts and affections on Mrs. Esch had destroyed her affection for her husband. Three days after the suit was filed Joyce and Mrs. Esch, who had divorced her husband, were married at Joyce's Miami, Fla., home. The suit was dismissed by agreement.

Esch asserted Joyce, posing as his friend, had indulged in clandestine meetings with Mrs. Esch, and secretly corresponded with her as he provided her with the sumptuous gifts Esch could not afford.

SIDE TALKS

(By Ruth Cameron)

A SECRET OF LEADERSHIP

We were congratulating our young neighbor on having been elected president of her home town civic club, an organization noted for its worth while achievements.

"I hope I'll be able to fill the position gracefully," she said, "I don't worry so much about the civic work, for there are some splendid women with plenty of experience whom I can rely on to put over the big things. What I am most concerned in is the avoidance of friction in my relations with the other officers. Tell me," turning to the elderly woman who had been listening with a quiet smile, "you have a reputation for tact, how did you manage when you were in club work? Can you give me some road rules, some leaves from your book of experience?"

Easier to Take Some Blame

"It's nice of you to suggest that I might be helpful my dear," said the older woman. "Youth is not often so open to suggestion from the older generation. But since you ask—well I do remember one little trick that I think served better than almost any other to oil troubled waters. And that was taking on myself blame for things for which I was not actually responsible. The idea originated in laziness more than anything else. It was easier to take the blame than to get into a controversy over who was to blame for every little thing.

"If the secretary for instance, failed to send out notices for a certain committee meeting it was easy to say, 'I should have reminded you. I guess that was up to me as much as to you.' And nine times out of ten the secretary would be so relieved at not having to assume the blame that she would begin protesting that she really ought to have remembered it herself. You see, she is then in a position to be magnanimous and the role is more to her taste than that of careless forgetfulness."

We Have To Justify Ourselves

It seemed to me the more I thought of it, that that is a rule worth remembering in other walks of life where we want to avoid friction.

We all do so hate to be in the wrong that we feel gratitude to the one who is willing to share the burden of disapproval or to make excuses for our carelessness.

One of the most primitive of all our instincts is the one which makes our resentment rise the moment someone finds fault with us. Watch a little child "I didn't do it," or "I couldn't help it," is his invariable report when confronted with a fault.

So it is not to be wondered at that the little conciliatory trick proved so effectual in that woman's club work.

Rubbing It In

So often a person with a little authority finds a certain satisfaction in "rubbing it in" when he discovers a small blunder on the part of someone whom he has jurisdiction, whether it is club workers or servants or children or employees. What crime was it who said, "There is something not altogether displeasing to us in the misfortunes of our friends."

Instead of adopting the holier than thou attitude, we can find it in our hearts to excuse and overlook some of the small slips, we will be surer of smooth sailing and happier relations with our fellow workers.

And by the way, all the modest old lady called "Jazzess, in that she professed to shoulder the blame rather than get into a controversy, I believe that her real motive was more worthy than that. A gentleman," says Dan

SHERIFF FOR SQUARE DEAL

WILBER OFFICIAL RESENTS SLAP AT SALINE COUNTY.

Says Lincoln Furnished Portion of Talent in Connection With the Wholesale Theft of Cars Recently Uncovered.

Sheriff Henry Greer of Wilber resents what he terms a too liberal slap at Saline county. He is willing that his county shall take a reasonable ruffing in connection with recent disclosures of wholesale auto theft, but wants it understood that so-called thieves may be found outside of that community—that because one garage received a black eye is no reason to suspect others of wrong doing.

"Please bear in mind," said the sheriff, "that practically all of the cars were stolen in Lincoln and that Lincoln men did much of the stealing. The stealing was the first act. Before numbers could be knocked down there must be something to work upon."

Sheriff Greer came to Lincoln Wednesday with a stolen car recovered outside the "nest." It was sold to a Wilber citizen by a second-hand dealer of this city. In view of this and other facts, the Saline official suggests that Lancaster county receive a bit of toasting over the coals.

He said that the Mares Auto company continues to operate regardless of recent arrest of the two brothers and their father. All were released on bail. He laughed at stories which came out of Omaha when the "nest" was a warm topic. These stories indicated that feeling was high in Saline and that officials were in fear of a lynching party.

"That was a bunch of rot", said the sheriff. "Feeling never was high. The incident is closed and we are satisfied that the example will prove valuable in matter of law enforcement in the future."

BAD CHECK HONEYMOONS END

Two Soldiers in Jail, Disillusioned Brides Say They Will Stand by Them.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Two honeymoons, declared to have been financed with bad checks, ended here today with two disillusioned brides and two soldier husbands looking out of jail cells.

Miss Alyce L. Garrigue married Harold Brent at Long Beach, Calif., two weeks ago. "Brent" was unmasked as Harry G. Lewis, private A. W. O. L. from Columbus barracks, O., when secret service agents walked into their suite at the La Salle hotel here. His home is in Toronto, Ont.

Forged government checks amounting to several thousand dollars marked his path to the coast and back again, Henry Corcoran, federal agent, declared.

Tenney Dennison, ex-lieutenant of field artillery, was arrested and charged with passing $2,000 worth of checks and impersonating an army officer while honeymooning.

"He did it for me and I'll stick by him," sobbed Mrs. Dennison. Mrs. Lewis declared she too would stand by her husband.

Both men will be returned to Los Angeles for trial and will be accompanied by their wives.

INGOLDSBY WANTS TO GET OUT OF PEN

Seeks Aid of the United States District Court—Alleges That He Is Being Unlawfully Deprived of Liberty by Fenton.

James G. V. Ingoldsby, who says that his present home is at Lancaster, Neb., asked the federal district court Tuesday for a writ of habeas corpus. The petitioner alleges that he is being unlawfully deprived of his liberty by Warden W. T. Fenton.

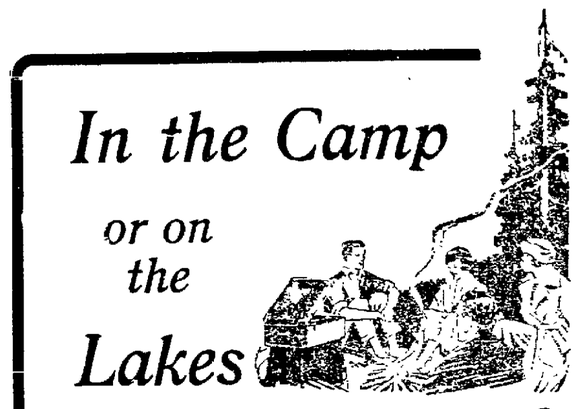

He says that he never was tried for a crime in Nebraska or in any other part of the United States. He claims that he was brought here from Texas by officers who had no authority to act and that under no circumstances should he be detained in a Nebraska prison.

A Billion-Dollar Farm Trio.

Three great states stand out boldly from the rest in value of farm crops. Official estimates show that Texas, Illinois and Iowa raised farm crops in 1922 aggregating in value one and a half billion dollars. With an estimated total value of American farm crops in 1922 of approximately eight and a half billions will find Texas contributing more than 716 millions Iowa more than 450 millions. On a ten-year average Texas contributes a still larger amount—more than 850 millions, while Illinois leads Iowa during this longer period by an average of nearly twenty millions.

Twenty-two crops are included in this estimate recently made public by the federal department of agriculture. Corn, wheat, oats, barley, rye, buckwheat, flaxseed, rice, potatoes, sweet potatoes, hay, tobacco, cotton, beans, broom corn, grain sorghums, hops, oranges, cloverseed, peanuts, cranberries and apples all figure in the totals.—The Nation's Business.

LATE NEWS OF YESTERDAY

POSTAL EMPLOYES AT ANNUAL PICNIC

Three Hundred Enjoy Annual Outing at the Agricultural College on Tuesday Afternoon—Many Contests Staged.

Over three hundred postal employes and their families attended a picnic at the agricultural college campus Tuesday afternoon. Many declared that the outing was the best ever held by members of the service in Lincoln. It may be made an annual affair.

Co-operation of patrons of the postoffice, which had been asked for by Postmaster McClay, was heartily given, the employes said, and it was this that made the picnic possible. It will depend on the continuance of this support in future years whether the picnics can be regularly continued.

The agricultural college campus was reached about 4 o'clock, and the afternoon was given to sports. The clerks carried away honors in a baseball game over the carriers, by a score of 7 to 3. Batteries for the clerks were Milton Land and Edwin Hoke; for the carriers, George Ross and John Heelan.

Elwin Brownson took first honors in a tennis singles tournament; Edwin Salisbury and Elwin Brownson were awarded the doubles championship. Robert Barthelman and Jack Little came out first in a three-legged race. Mrs. Edith Hudson won the egg race for women.

Albert Lemen, a retired employe, made away with all honors on the horseshoe pitching grounds. Mr. Lemen is sixty-seven years old, and was retired two years ago. He is one of the oldest postal pensioners in Lincoln.

Miss Sullivan was judged best for first place in a slipper throwing contest, and a race for which married couples were tied together by the arms was won by Mr. and Mrs. George Ross.

In a contest in which entrants tried to throw the greatest number of papers into their proper bags in the least time, under similar conditions as those at the postoffice, Milton Land came out first once more.

There were two boxing matches. Robert Barthleman was given the decision in the lightweight class after a three-round bout with Hugh Leacock. James Austin won a decision from William Teachman in the heavyweight class after three rounds.

PEOPLE YOU KNOW

J. H. Elmore has written The Journal from Berkeley, Cal., as follows:

"While The Journal and the local papers are telling of the torrid conditions in the east and the middle west we are enjoying a delightful climate with bright sunshine every day while the thermometer registers about 68 to 70 in the shade. At night we have to cover up well and if we go out riding after supper as we often do, an overcoat is in order. Our trip here was full of interest, especially after we came in sight of the snow-capped mountains.

"For hours we could see the long line glistening in the morning sun and when we got among them the scenery was grand. We crossed the Great Salt lake on a bridge over twenty miles long. The cut-off saves about forty-six miles and a climb of 1,500 feet by road around the lake. Salt Lake covers two thousand acres and is the saltiest body on earth except the Dead sea. From the highest point we reached to Sacramento, eighty-six miles, we descended 6,988 feet.

"We found it quite warm in Sacramento valley. Before reaching Berkeley we crossed a bay, the ferry taking our long train over bodily. From the crossing we followed the bay about twenty miles and were met at the station by our folks, Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft, with an automobile, and soon our journey was at an end.

"Berkeley is a beautiful city of about 50,000, but Oakland and two smaller cities that used to have elbow room of their own have all grown together until now it is one solid city as large as Chicago, but each keeps its identity and its own city government. Only a native can tell when one city leaves off and another begins.

"The beauty of Berkeley is greatly enhanced by its trees and flowers. Palms, pines and numerous other trees are everywhere. And flowers of all shades and colors are everywhere in evidence. The University of California is here and from where I write I can see over into the campus but not very far into it on account of the trees. It is a great school and a beautiful campus."

The quarterly meeting of the federation of the W. C. T. U. will be held Friday afternoon at 2:30 at the city Y. W. C. A. Members of the four unions represented in the federation are to be present.

Guy Hyatt, son of Mrs. J. S. Hyatt, 2135 South street, left Tuesday for Boston. He will stop en route at Cleveland and Niagara Falls. From Boston he will go by boat to Star island, ten miles off the coast of Portsmouth, N. H., where he will be one of the student leaders of the national convention of the young people's religious union at the Unitarian church. At the close of the convention he will go to Schenectady, N. Y., where he has accepted a position with the General Electric company. Mr. Hyatt graduated last June from the college of business administration, University of Nebraska, and is senior councillor of the order of DeMolay.

Mrs. Vance Traphagen returned Tuesday from the east. She attended the reunion in Boston of her class of 1920 of Wellesley college. She also visited in other eastern cities. She has been gone six weeks.

Miss Mabel H. Thomas of Shickley, and Kearby E. Sparks of Fort Worth, Tex., were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage at Harvard, by Rev. B. N. Kunkle, Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Sparks will be at home in Poplar Bluffs, Mo., where Mr. Sparks is in the employ of the Missouri Pacific as a civil engineer.

O. J. Fee purchased the residence of H. P. Lau at 1509 South Twenty-third street. His own home at 2059 Euclid avenue, was given in the exchange. He is expecting to get possession about August 15 or September 1.

Mrs. C. H. Jenkins, 2040 E srteet, has returned after an absence of two months spent in genealogical research in the St. Louis library, and the Newberry genealogical library of Chicago.

Lee Herdman of Omaha called on Governor Bryan Tuesday to see about getting some little appointmnets made for the benefit of Omaha democrats.

Miss Marie Hazel Gropp of Owensboro, Ky., is a guest of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Meehan, 332 Floral Court.

Morning Star lodge No. 384 M. B. A. elected Mrs. Mary Parris, the lodge's secretary-treasurer, as delegate to the state convention to be held in Lincoln August 4.

MERE MENTION

The Lincoln Telephone company has paid to the city as occupation tax for the Lincoln exchange, month of July, $621.21. This being one per cent of $62,121.64, total toll revenue on which tax is paid.

Irene Jones Herman was granted a decree of divorce from James D. Herman by District Judge Morning Tuesday afternoon. The grounds given were non-support. The couple were married in Lincoln January 18, 1922. There are no children.

J. T. Stiles faces a charge, brought against him in Justice of Peace Hawes' court, of failure to support his wife. Mr. Stiles pleaded innocence to the charge. He will be given hearing at 9 a. m. Thursday. He was released on $300 personal bond.

Two runs were made by firemen Tuesday evening. At 2120 J street, the upholstery of a back seat in an automobile had caught fire, but was not badly burned. A chimney burned out at 136 South Eleventh street without doing any damage.

George Allen and Douglas Rowe, colored, were bound over to the federal grand jury by United States Commissioner H. J. Whitmore Tuesday afternoon on complaints charging them with violating the Mann white slave law. Allen is alleged to have unlawfully transported Eula Wright, colored, June 30 from St. Joseph, Mo., to Nebraska City and Rowe is alleged to have unlawfully transported Mrs. Clara Johns, colored, July 8 from St. Joseph to Nebraska City. Each was put under a bond of $1,500. They were unable to furnish security and went back to jail. The women were placed under a bond of $500 each for their appearance before the grand jury. A sister of Eula Wright is expected to furnish a bond and permit the girl to return to her home at Kansas City. Clara Johns was paroled to her husband, Percy Johns, the latter agreeing to see that she appeared at Lincoln when wanted. Johns was willing to overlook the escapade of his wife and take her back. The defendthe two women and they proceeded to fiercely attack the evidence which the women gave at the hearing. They did not deny that they had lived with the women at Nebraska City, and had passed them off as their wives.

WANT THE DECREE SET ASIDE

Claim Defendants in Kinnan Case Have Not Followed Order in Regard to Mausoleum.

COLUMBUS, Neb., July 17.—Application to set aside the decree in the Kinnan case which provided that the bodies of Joseph R. and Martha J. Kinnan, deceased husband and wife, should be placed in a mausoleum in Columbus cemetery and that the six sons and daughters should all have legal rights to visitation to the mausoleum has been filed in district court by the plaintiffs. An order setting aside the decree is requested chiefly on two allegations. First that Misses Jessie and Dollie Kinan, the defendants, and who erected the mausoleum, have refused to deposit a key to it with the sexton of the cemetery as directed in the decree, and second that the plaintiffs have discovered new evidence material to their contentions in the cause.

FREMONT, Neb., July 17.—Cattle rustlers were forced to abandon two valuable milch cows stolen from the farm of A. C. Sisson, six miles east of Fremont, Monday night when their truck became stuck in a field as a result of the heavy load. The missing cattle were found four miles from the Sisson farm. The tracks of the truck wheels show that the thieves led the cattle for a distance of a half mile before they were loaded and carried off. Attempting to reach the highway by a short cut however, proved to be their undoing.

ROTARY CLUB HOLDS ITS ANNUAL PICNIC

Events of a Happy Evening Are a Big Dinner and Games in Which Winners Take Handsome Prizes.

Three hundred and fifty members of the Rotary club and guests were entertained Tuesday evening at an annual picnic held at the Lincoln auto club park near Saltillo. The picnic began at 4 p. m. and concluded with a dance which lasted until after 10 p. m.

Members and their families took basket luncheons, but the club furnished ice cream and drinks. Athletic contests were engaged in and prizes awarded to the winners.

A feature of the picnic was a ball game between chosen sides, umpired by Adrian Newens, president of the club. A member of the picnic committee said the score went so high that count was lost after the hundreds had been reached.

Another feature of the picnic was a men's sack race in which Roy Capron hopped himself to the goal post first of a long list of contenders and won a tailor-made suit for his efforts.

Boxes of candy and cakes, silk hose and an electric toaster were among prizes won by women who engaged in contests.

Weather was splendid for the event, and the picnic was among the most successful and most enjoyed given by the club, the members say. Events were:

Ladies' ball throw: First prize, Miss Abbott, pair silk hose; second prize, Irene Fleming, box of candy.

Ladies' slipper scramble: First prize, Gertrude Tomson, box of candy; second prize, Lydia Capron, box of cakes.

Men's sack race: Roy Capron, tailor-made suit.

Boys' chicken scramble: First prize, Wood Pierce, ball, bat, glove and the chicken; second prize, Thomas Clark, the chicken.

Ladies' running race: First prize, Dorothy Ludwig, five pounds of butter; second prize, Lydia Capron, auto cushion.

DAUGHTER FINDS HER LONG LOST PARENT

Mrs. L. L. Doyle, Fremont, Placed in Orphanage When Child Finds Father at Sioux City After a Long Search.

FREMONT, Neb., July 17.—Mrs. L. L. Doyle, thirty, wife of a Northwestern brakeman, Tuesday met her father, John Smith, Sioux City, for the first time that she can remember. Placed in an orphans' home shortly after her birtth when her mother died, Mrs. Doyle with her brother and sister lost their identities when they were adopted by foster parents. Mrs. Doyle resumed efforts to locate her father and other relatives back in 1921 when she made an investigation of the records at the orphanage near Chicago where they had been placed. This attempt led to the discovery of her brother in Livingston, Mont. The other sister, Mrs. F. R. Whuelock, Sioux City, also took steps to locate her missing sister and brother and thru the orphanage, all three were soon reunited.

A newspaper story telling of a man named John Smith, who sought to locate his children, who had been placed in the same orphanage near Chicago, led to a correspondence that later confirmed the relationship of the three children and the surviving parent.

Rob Four Columbus Homes.

COLUMBUS, Neb., July 17.—Burglars ransacked four north side homes last night escaping with small loot at two places and were frightened away at the other places. At the Rosco Goodrich house they gained entrance by cutting the kitchen door screen. In one front room they passed the cot where Mr. Goodrich was sleeping and getting into the bedroom where Mrs. Goodrich was sleeping they threw an electric flash into her face. Frightened by her screams they fled. At the John E. Peterson home, $5 was stolen from Mr. Peterson's trousers. At the homes of Albert Ernest and Ted Haney, small amounts of money were secured.

FRED KRIDER WINS JUDGMENT

WYMORE, Neb., July 17.—A judgment of $69 and costs was awarded Fred Krider in his suit against Albert Barnts and his father Frank Barnts, in the justice court here today. Mr. Krider brought suit for $180 and costs to cover damage done last November when Albert Barnts, who was then a minor, drove his father's car into a bunch of cattle which Mr. Krider's daughter was driving across the road into their barnyard. The case attracted considerable local attention as both parties are prominent farmers. Mr. Krider, for whom the town of Krider was named, was one of the early settlers in this locality. The case was tried before Justice of Peace Moran.

BRIDE KILLED BY A HAMMER

FOUND WITH HEAD CRUSHED AND BODY HORRIBLY BRUISED.

Done to Death at Same Time That Husband Was Fatally Injured by Falling From a Train.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., July 18.—A brutal hammer murder was discovered by police today with the finding of the nude body of Mrs. Julia Coyne, eighteen, a bride of five months, in her honeymoon cottage at Port Perry, near Braddock.

Only a few hours before the badly battered body was found, the husband, Patrick Coyne, a brakemen, lost both legs in falling from a car and is reported dying in a hospital.

The girl's body was found by her father, John Conroy, who searched for her thruout the night to inform her of the accident to her husband.

The door and windows of the cottage where Mrs. Coyne's body was found were securely locked. Finally Conroy summoned help and battered down the door. The body was found covered with blood on the bed.

Mrs. Coyne, a beautiful, auburn haired girl, was well known in the Braddock district before her marriage five months ago.

Mrs. Coyne's husband worked from 3 o'clock until 11 at night and the girl never occupied the cottage alone during his absence. She generally went to the home of her father or other other relatives until her husband finished working.

A score of detectives were set to work at once in a search for the slayer. Police believe the girl was enticed to the cottage and there attacked and later beaten to death with a blunt instrument, possibly a hammer.

The girl had been dead several hours. Her head was crushed into an unshapely mass and the body horribly bruised.

HUNTING OWNER OF WHISKY

Government Confiscated 2,500 Barrels, Worth Two and a Half Million Dollars.

PHILADELPHIA, July 18.—The U. S. district court here is trying to find the owner of 2,500 barrels of pure Overholt whiskey, valued at $2,500,000 stored in the Philadelphia Pure Rye Whiskey Distilling company at Eddington, Pa.

The company recently confiscated the liquor for non payment of storage, after being unable to find the owner. When it was learned federal agents were about to seize the whiskey, they filed suit asking that six government departmental executives be refrained from removing the liquor.

Owners of the warehouse some time ago sold their holdings to a syndicate headed by Leo A. Kearns. Kearns said that the 2,5000 barrels of Overholt were part of a 42,000 barrels order in France in 1920, before prohibition. Because there was no market for the entire shipment, the 2,500 barrels were returned from France and placed in the warehouse.

No storage has been paid since October, 1922. The owners of the whiskey have not revealed their identity.

Someday

Some day you'll dwell in easy street and live on pie and roasted veal, if you hump around on willing feet, and do you chores with eager zeal. The great rewards are given those who view their tasks with smiling eyes, who yearn not for the workday's close, nor clockward gaze with bitter sighs. In Easy street you'll build your hut, with trees and artificial ponds, and every now and then you'll cut some nice pink coupons from your bonds. It is a busy world and sloth won't get the voter anywhere; the lazy man is in the broth he's never right side up with care. Some day if you have saved the scads and placed them safely in a can, you may indulge in costly fads, and journey in a rich sedan. You'll have provided for the time when you are old and glad to rest and you will know it is sublime to have a wellstocked treasure chest. Some day you'll heave three gasping pants, and then your useful life will cease, and you can leave your maiden aunts a thousand bones or so apiece. So bravely work and wisely save, be sane and thrifty to the end, for, from the cradle to the grave, his bundle is a man's best friend.

THE LOVE THAT WON

By FAY STEVENSON

Copyright, 1923 (New York Evening World), Press Publishing Company

A NEW DAILY SERIAL STORY THAT ANSWERS THE QUESTION "SHOULD A GIRL PROPOSE?"

Concerning Confirmed Bachelors.

It was not until Jean and John Wellington Browne reached the park that the latter took her arm and became confidential. They had strolled along Fifth Avenue with few words escaping their lips. Each was busy thinking out his own line of thought. But as the tall budding trees and delicate foliage appeared Browne heaved a sigh, drew his arm through Jean's and said:

"Now you're going to hear why I have been such an old crab. My mother and sisters have wondered why I dodge and run away from every season's debutante, flashy widows and clever women who have made their names in the world of literature or art. It's because—because a girl at college broke my heart."

Jean breathed a sympathetic "Oh!"

She was beginning to understand.

"When a chap is twenty-one he is more susceptible than at any other time of his life as far as love is concerned," continued Browne. "When he's in love at sixteen or eighteen it's mooncalf love, but at twenty-one matrimony and a thatched cottage are the most sacred things on earth to him. If the girl of his choice runs off with another chap he is not very likely to trust any woman the same way again. At thirty he would laugh, but at twenty-one it's a tragedy."

"And that's what happened to me. I was attending a co-ed college and met the sweetest, golden-haired, blue-eyed angel in the world. We read poetry together, took long moonlight strolls, skated winters and canoed summers. We lived for each other. Then I introduced my roommate—and she left me for him. Before the close of the college year they were married. She kept house for him while he finished his course and I—I finished my course alone."

Jean met his eyes. They were moist. The under lip of this great stalwart man of thirty-five quivered as he thought it over now. It was self-pity now though and not love for this girl who had cast him aside.

"You ought to be glad that you lost her," said Jean in her quiet, matter-of-fact voice. "A girl who would throw over your friendship like that might do the very same thing after you had married her."

"That is the way I finally figured it out," he replied. "But in the mean time I lost one of the greatest, most comforting qualities a man can possess—faith in women. She had seemed so sincere, so true in everything. If she could turn like that I felt certain all women could."

"That is why"—she bit her lip and checked herself.

"Yes, that is why I have avoided you," he finished for her. "There was something in your eyes which rang true, but when I learned you were engaged to this Oscar Livingston and were also running around with an artist I didn't dare put my faith in you. I went fishing, I ran away from myself—and you."

The sun was sinking fast in an orange and yellow background. A few birds skirmished about before finally going to their nests. The very bushes and shrubs seemed weary for the night and quietness.

Jean and John Wellington Browne turned from the park back to Fifth Avenue and the hustle and bustle of life. He had told her his dearest secret. She understood. She wanted to help him. She wanted to tell him how sincere her love was. How could she? No girl wishes to propose to a man of character and deep feeling. How, then, could she show her true love for him? Or was he beginning to realize it?

"I ran away from myself—and you," he said, as if repeating the truth to himself. "I believed you cared for Oscar Livingston, but when I saw you greet him at the hospital this afternoon I saw it was only the greeting of a friend and not a lover's meeting."

Jean waited breathlessly for the rest of it. Had he at last realized how much she loved him?

SMALL JURY NOT FIXED

Conspiracy Charges Growing Out of Governor's Trial in Utter Collapse.

WAUKEGAN, Ill., July 18.—The "jury-fixing" cases involving the acquittal of Gov. Len Small of charges of conspiracy to embezzle state funds collapsed today.

John R. Fields, Small trial juror; Edward Kaufman and Edward Courtney were acquitted late yesterday in circuit court of conspiracy to corrupt the Small jury. The jury which found the trio not guilty took only one ballot on each defendant.

Attorneys said it was probable there will be no further grand jury investigations of "fixing" charges.

"The acquittal shows that innocent men cannot be convicted to further someone's political ambitions." Defense Attorneys William Scott and W. W. O'Brien said in a statement.

TROUBLE IN PHILIPPINES

INDEPENDENCE OF ISLANDS REPORTED IN DANGER.

Cabinet Resigns as Result of Upheaval Charged to Wood's Interference in Civil Affairs.

MANILA, P. I., July 18.—Resignation of the Philippine cabinet was believed today by political observers to mean the end of hope for independence of the islands in the immediate future.

Whether non-cooperation hinted by those resigning would spread beyond government circles was an interesting question.

The political upheaval is the greatest since American occupation of the island and was due according to retiring cabinet members, to General Wood's alleged interferance with civic matters.

In accepting the resignations Wood said he considered their action as a challange of his authority as governor and hinted martial law may follow.

MUSEUM GETS WAR RELIC

Bullet Imbedded in Oak on Lookout Mountain Discovered When Tree Is Chopped Down.

A relic of the civil war, an inch and a half ball imbedded in oak, has been received at the University of Nebrassa museum. The piece of wood shows that the tree was badly shattered by the impact but proceeded to repair the wound by sending out woody growth which almost enclosed the bullet. When the oak was cut down and split into firewood, the relic was exposed to view.

The tree stood on Lookout mountain, Virginia. The specimen was secured and presented to the museum by Hamilton Rodger of Gibbon, Neb., thru C. O. Sawyer of Lincoln. The relic will be exhibited in the case with the horse shoe imbedded in a maple, recently found when clearing the capitol grounds. The maple was believed to be about thirty years of age and had completely enveloped the horseshoe. In the effort to cleave the tree trunk, the wood cutter made deep cuts in the iron shoe before it was discovered, and ruined an ax in the process.

KILLS WIFE AND RELATIVES

Missourian Shoots Three Women and Gives Himself Up to Escape Mob.

MOUNTAIN PEAK FALLS IN

Volcano in Rumania, Believed Extinct, Comes to Life After Hundred Years.

BUCHAREST, July 18.—The peak of Caliman mountain, 5,000 feet high, suddenly collapsed and tumbled inward today. Dense white smoke is pouring up from the debris.

It is believed to be the awakening of a century old volcano.

So far there have been no casualties.

MAD EX-EMPRESS IS DYING

Carlotta of Mexico Visited by Royal Relatives in Brussels Chateau-Prison.

BRUSSELS, July 18.—The mad empress Carlotta, widow of the former Emperor Maximilian of Mexico, who for half a century has been locked in solitary grandeur in her chateau at Bouchout, is dying. King Albert of Belgium, her nephew, has gone to her bedside.

The ex-empress went insane in 1867 when Maximilian was executed. She believes she still is in Mexico. When the Germans invaded Belgium, the former German kaiser ordered that every precaution be taken to guard the aged woman.

How to build up your Weight

TO be under weight often proves low fighting-power in the body. It often means you are minus nerve-power, minus red-cells in your blood, minus health, minus vitality. It is serious to be minus, but the moment you increase the number of your red-blood-cells, you begin to become plus. That's why S.S.S., since 1826, has meant to thousands of underweight men and women, a plus in their strength. Your body fills to the point of power, your flesh becomes firmer, the age lines that come from thinness disappear. You look younger, firmer, happier, and you feel it, too, all over your body. More red-blood-cells! S.S.S. will build them.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.

Yellow Cab

Fare Registers Absolute Protection

The Ohmer Fare Register with which Yellow Cabs are now equipped, is the most ingenious and accurate piece of recording mechanism in existence.

Its use on the Yellow Cabs absolutely prevents the possibility of inaccurate fares and overcharging, and incidentally, YELLOW CABS are the only cabs in Lincoln that have it.

These fare registers CAN'T BE BOUGHT. They can only be rented. We could go into the market and buy meters of our own for the amount we pay the Ohmer Company in rental IN ONE YEAR.

But our consideration for the public induces us to pay this big sum of money for a register that records THE EXACT FARE and prints it automatically IN INDELIBLE INK on a slip of paper which is handed to you as your receipt. This receipt identifies the cab, the driver and the trip. If you leave any valuables in the cab, they may be instantly traced and responsibility placed. The Printed Receipt is YOUR PROTECTION.

All our drivers are instructed to hand you this printed receipt. Please be sure to get it. You may never need it but you can never tell when, or how soon you may.

BETTY VISITS REINDEER-LAND.

"POOH!" Betty exclaimed with a disgusted grunt, when she was told that her little baby sister had her first tooth. "I can't for the life of me see why folks should make such a fuss over a little thing like that. But that's the way with Mama, she makes—"

"Gracious!" cried a happy voice, and Gocomeback, the little travel elfin, tumbled right down beside Betty. "Why, Betty, when I saw that distressed look on your face, I thought something terrible had happened."

"Well, it seems so silly to make such a fuss over a first tooth," and Betty's eyes filled with tears. "Why, no one has even seen me since baby's tooth was discovered."

"Tut-tut-tut!" laughed Gocomeback, patting Betty's curly head. "Don't you worry, dear little girl. I expect they acted the same way when you had your first tooth. That just reminds me, I was on my way to Lapland when I met you. Would you like to come with me?"

Before Betty could answer she found herself standing in a queer little hut.

The house was full of people and every one seemed to be as merry as could be. It sounded like a party or social of some kind, and Gocomeback laughed when Betty spoke of it.

"Mother Lapland," he said merrily to the dear little hostess, who looked very fat indeed in her heavy reindeer skin dress, "maybe you can tell our little American friend the reason for all this merriment."

"Indeed, I can," the merry lady replied, and she brought out a dear little baby wearing a dress fashioned of reindeer skin. "See? Our wee-one has cut her first tooth, and in Lapland we always make merry at such a time.

"As far back as I can remember," she explained, "when a child is born it is presented with a reindeer. And when the first tooth is discovered, the person who first sees it is presented with a reindeer. Our other little girl discovered Baby's first tooth, so we are having a party, and Daddy gave her a lovely reindeer."

She called the little girl and asked her to take Betty out to see the prize. It was a wonderful animal—the first live reindeer Betty had ever seen.

"You see, in Lapland we use the reindeer as you folks use the horse in America. Our reindeer do all our work because they are so swift. A reindeer can travel much faster than a horse."

"The idea!" Betty laughed. "Well, I'd like to give my sister a nice reindeer. You see, I discovered her first tooth, but I didn't get anything."

"Oh, yes, you did!" laughed Gocomeback. "You got the chance to take this trip with me to Lapland."

Just then Betty heard her mama calling, and bidding her friends goodby she hurried into the house and told this story just as I've told it to you.

MY HUSBAND'S LOVE

Adele Garrison's New Phase of

Revelations of a Wife

(C) 1923, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

The Reason Katie Was Troubled About the People Across the Road.

HEARTENED by Katherine's cheeriness, I walked with her to the kitchen, finding Katie with her face close to the kitchen window, which commanded a view of the road. She turned as we entered, and I saw that she was puzzled about something.

"Something's foony about dose peoples 'cross road," she said, as she saw us.

"How is that, Katie?" I asked with interest quickened by her comment.

"Dey have no vashings out on line," she replied, and Katherine raised her eyebrows at me in mute questioning as to the meaning of the apparent absurdity. I knew that Katie needed no prodding to keep on talking, and contented myself with the first inane query which came into my head.

"Is this their washday?" I asked.

"No," she answered emphatically. "Dot shoost vot trouble. Dey nefer vash dis day, und dey nefer borrow notings before. But dis morning womans coom ofer, ask me for vun vash tub, say she got beeg vash, too much for her tubs. I know you always say, 'Katie, always be kind und lovings by neighbors,' so I lend dot tub, und dey no vash out all dees time. I no understand."

Katie Is Puzzled.

I heard a little choking sound from Katherine, smothered by a cough, and knew that she was as amused by Katie's interpretation of my instructions to her, as I was. But I also knew that we must not betray our amusement to the sensitive girl, so I made a quick banal comment.

"It looks like rain, so perhaps she won't put out the clothes until to-morrow. Don't worry about it. If she spoils the tub, I'll buy you another."

"I no vorry about tub," Katie answered a bit sullenly. "Eef dey spoil dot tub I take eet out of dere hide. But I no like tings I no understand. Dey oop to sometings, dose peoples. Maybe, dey keel somebody, und cut heem oop, und—"

"Katie!" I cut short the gory details of her imagined five-reeler. "I forgot to tell you. Mother Graham wants you upstairs right away with Mrs. Ticer and Mamie. She wants to get a great deal accomplished this afternoon with the three of you cleaning."

The ruse succeeded brilliantly. Katie faced me belligerently, arms akimbo, the oddities of the family across the road forgotten.

"How she tink I goin' get dinner eef I stay oop dere und clean all afternoon?" she demanded.

"Mrs. Bickett and I are going to get the dinner." I answered placatingly, "and wash the dishes afterward, so you can go upstairs immediately. I'm sure I know where everything is, and I see the chickens are all nicely cleaned and ready for cooking."

"I'll Help You."

"Yah, dot Jeem he do goot job." Katie's indifferent drawl was irresistibly laugh-provoking. "Und all oder vegetables in cold vater ready to cook. "You no like eet so vell eef you have to do eet all time." Katie retorted, with cheerful impudence, and then she bustled out of the kitchen, while Katherine and I, when she was safely out of hearing, relieved our tense nerves with a hearty laugh.

"Katie ought to incorporate herself as a cure for the glooms," Katherine said at last, wiping her eyes, and then she walked to the window where Katie had stood.

"Just the same, I would like to know what they wanted with the tub."

"So would I," I returned, "but there's no way of finding out, so I'll tackle this chicken instead, and get it over before any other interruption."

"I'll help you." Katerine volunteered, and we both worked. Scarcely had we finished our task before the telephone rang. The message, I was sure, was from Dr. Braithwaite.

WHEN the earth seems only a stage set with the scenery necessary to romance—when the very breezes seem to sing a wonderous melody—how completing come the sounds of music wafted underneath the moon! Lovely as the melody sounds in the ears of one eager to discover who is playing—the music and even the breeze that bears it seem still more perfect when he discovers that the serenader is a girl. What wouldn't he give if wishes were a canoe, so he might bridge the stream which flows between, and tell her how perfect is the pleasure her music gives him beneath the Summer moon!

YOUR HEALTH

What You Should Avoid If You'd Keep Your Hair

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

DR. COPELAND

SMILE as we will there is one affliction every man hates to endure. He can't bear to be bald. He does his best to make a joke about it, but he feels like jerking the last hair out of his more fortunate friend's devoted head.

Baldness and the quality of the hair appear to be symptoms peculiar to families. This is why it is so common to hear it said that baldness is "hereditary."

Even though there is an unfavorable family history, I am not content to fall back on heredity and to give up before the battle begins. With rare exceptions, disease is not inherited. The tendency may be transmitted, but actual disease is acquired.

Many diseases depend on peculiar anatomical peculiarities or defects. These physical conditions undoubtedly run in some families.

For instance, in my family all the men have big noses. In another family tiny ears may be the rule. Big feet or little feet, long fingers or short ones, narrow chests or big, broad chests—all these may be family traits.

Likewise, the kind of heart you have, or the size of the blood-vessels, may be the result of heredity. In my opinion, the strength and permanence of the hair depend on the heart and blood-vessels.

If you have stingy heart action, with failure of the blood to be sent in forceful stream to the most remote parts of your body, you will be bald unless you exercise care.

The scalp is supplied with blood, all of which comes from below upwards. Spreading out like a fan, these tiny vessels go to every part of the skin of the head. Every hair follicle has its blood-vessel. Growth and strength of each individual hair depend on an unfailing supply of blood.

If you had an irrigated garden and the water pipes or ditches were too short to reach to the edge of every bed and to every part of your garden, there would be speedy death of the plants outside the irrigated region. It is just so with the hair. There must be uninterrupted flow of blood to the very crown of the head, or the hair will fall.

Anything interfering with the free blood supply of the scalp has the same effect as lack of force in the heart action. Tight, hard, heavy hats stop the flow of blood. The earlier such hats are worn the earlier will baldness appear.

To have strong hair your body must be well-nourished. Certain foods contain the elements needed by the hair.

The growth, quantity and appearance of your hair are pretty good indications of the vigor of your body and the strength of the action of your heart. Poorly nourished children have hair without lustre. It is amazing what a full diet of good milk will do for the hair of these little chaps.

One can live out his normal expectancy of life without a forcefully pumping heart, but it is hard to have a full crop of hair without a good supply of blood to the scalp.

Answers to Health Questions.

S. G. F. Q.—What can I do for a sick stomach due to the large quantity of milk and eggs I take daily for my health?

A.—Large quantities of milk and eggs are apt to make one bilious. Reduce the quantity of these, and add more fresh and stewed fruit and fresh vegetables to your diet. See that your kidneys and bowels eliminate properly.

SUBSCRIBER. Q.—Will you please tell me the symptoms, cause and treatment of laryngitis?

2.—What effect would diphtheria anti-toxin have on a very severe case?

A.—Laryngitis is an inflammation of the larynx. It is usually caused by colds. However, it may follow any infectious disease. The treatment would depend on the cause.

2.—If the laryngitis is caused by diphtheria the anti-toxin would help very materially.

Three-Minute Journeys

WHERE NO ONE BUT THE COOK MAY ENTER THE KITCHEN

IF the hygienic code as laid down in the several very old religions were strictly followed there would be little or no sickness caused by contamination through food. For the health laws underlying these old codes hold good to-day.

Probably no religious laws and regulations concerning food are more strict and complicated than are those observed by the Brahmans of India.

To begin with, according to the rules set down in this religion, every cook before preparing each meal is required by the Brahman law to take a bath.

Then, all food must be freshly prepared. No left-overs are ever served. To us it sounds extravagant, but this practice eliminates the possibility of food spoiling, which it does readily in a country where ice is a curiosity.

Then, although it is on account of the difference in caste, which affects every walk of life in India, there is a custom regarding the cuisine which if introduced in our country might save many a change in the household and give much peace of mind to the housekeeper.

By religious law the Brahman is obliged to leave the cooking and its many ramifications entirely to the cook. Neither the wife nor the owner of the house may interfere in the kitchen over which the Brahman cook rules supreme.

For "what you don't know doesn't worry you." If the good housewife in her eagerness to run her home efficiently, economically and neatly, with cleanliness as the dominant note, suddenly discovers something which does not please her, she is obliged to make correction. This often with good will on both the part of the maid and mistress often causes inharmony, many times leading to parting of the ways.

In India, according to the Brahman law, all this is avoided. Because there in that oriental country, owing to its differences in caste, n one but the cook may enter the kitchen for fear of defiling it by communication of individuals belonging to different strata.

How You Can Easily Make a Very Good Beauty Cream

By LUCREZIA BORI

The Famous Spanish Prima Donna

SOME women have complexions of such a delicate texture that the least touch of cold cream seems to disagree with them. Their complexions become rough and unattractive in appearance. Still they suffer from this and do nothing about it, because they know that even the most delicate cold creams they have been able to find seem to irritate this condition even more.

LUCREZIA BORI

One lovely young girl whose skin was of this texture felt very unhappy for a while because she thought her complexion would lose all the clear smoothness of youth long before its time. Then her grandmother prescribed a homey, old-fashioned remedy which I am going to pass on to you because I consider it excellent. It is made from the simplest, most unfashionable source you can imagine, but you must not spurn it because of this. It may contain just the soothing, beautifying element that your delicate skin needs most.

You go about it in this way: Buy at the butcher's a portion of mutton suet. This is the fattest portion of mutton, as you probably know.

Place this in a small pan over the fire and let it render, or melt. When the fat is thoroughly melted, strain the hot liquid through a fine muslin cloth into a clean jelly glass. Now, when your liquid has become almost cooled off, but before it has begun to harden, mix in a few drops of your favorite perfume. This is to take away the fatty odor of the tallow, as well as to make it more pleasant for you, because it contains the scent that you favor.

When cool, the mutton tallow will have the consistency of any cold cream. Keep it in your jelly glass, with the top securely on and apply it at night whenever your skin seems rough and shows a tendency to chapping. The fat of the mutton feeds your tissues and keeps your skin young and smooth.

Even if you can use cold cream successfully, you will do well to prepare a jar of this mutton tallow and use it occasionally, as it is rich in nourishment for the skin and helps keep your face smooth and in the pink of condition.

Another thing for which this is a wonderful remedy is the fine wrinkles that gather about your eyes when you are tired or when you have spent a day out in the wind and heat. You know how constantly you have to squint your eyes if you are where the dust and sunshine and heat combine to annoy you.

After coming in from an experience of this kind it is always well to bathe your eyes in a cooling eyewash. Then at night when you go to bed take a bit of the mutton tallow on your fingertips and rub it ever so gently under your eyes and up about the corners of them. Put it on fairly thick and leave it there all night. It helps wonderfully to smooth out the fine wrinkles and make your eyes look young. And you know eyes are perhaps the most telling features. It means everything to you to have them young and bright and sparkling.

Seven Ways to Prepare Delicious Drinks for Hot Days.

COOL drinks are always part of the summer program, and every hostess is on the lookout for new ones—or new versions of old ones. The wise woman, of course, always has plenty of ice on hand and plain sugar syrup with which to sweeten the drinks. For it is wasteful to use sugar in cold drinks without dissolving it first, for it does not melt and so remains at the bottom of the tumblers to be washed away. Women are melting it beforehand even for ice-tea on the family table. Another good idea is to squeeze and strain a bottle of lemon juice to put on ice, so that it is ready when needed.

If tea for icing is made in the morning and set to chill it requires less cracked ice in serving. To vary it, add sliced lemon, sprays of mint, sprays of lemon verbena, rose leaves, a little crushed anise seed or ginger syrup. In making the tea, pour boiling water over tea leaves, allow it to steep three minutes, strain and cool. Cafe au lait is delicious when served chilled. Grind the coffee fine, allowing a tablespoonful for each cup, or glass. Bring the needed amount of rich milk to boiling-point with the coffee and sweeten to taste. When cool strain, chill, then add a tablespoonful of whipped cream to each tumbler.

Frosted Cocoa.

Dissolve a small cupful of good cocoa in a cupful of hot milk. Have a quart of hot milk waiting. Beat in the yolk of an egg and stir all into the hot milk and sweeten to taste. Boil up once and hold at boiling-point for two minutes, then strain into a cupful of heavy cream and set to chill. When ready to serve, chill the glasses, pour in the cocoa and top with a little whipped cream and a candied cherry. Do not add cracked ice if it can be avoided, for it thins and destroys the flavor.

Pineapple Jazz.

Pare and squeeze the juice from a fresh ripe pineapple. Add to it the juice of an orange and the juice of four lemons. Melt one cupful of sugar in a half-cupful of boiling water, then cool and set aside. When ready to serve the jazz, sweeten to taste, add a quart of sparkling water to the juice and serve in glasses filled with cracked ice, putting a spray of mint in each glass.

Lime Punch.

Squeeze fresh ripe limes enough to make a cupful of the juice. Add a cupful of orange juice and a cupful of grated pineapple. Melt two cupfuls of sugar with two cupfuls of boiling water. Boil two minutes, then set to cool. When cold, add to the fruit juice and set to chill. When ready to serve, add a bottle of sparkling water—quart size—and fill the glasses with shaved ice. This will stand a little more diluting, as it is strong and rich.

Watermelon Grapette.

Cut the flesh of a half-watermelon into cubes, removing the seeds. Then put into a bowl and turn over a small bottle of ginger ale and set away to chill. When ready to serve, fill the glasses with shaved ice and the melon cubes. Then pour over slightly diluted and sweetened grape juice enough to fill the glasses.

Loganberry Punch.

Take three cupfuls of loganberry juice and add to it the juice of a lemon and a half-cupful of ginger syrup, chill and when ready to serve add a quart of chilled sparkling water and serve in glasses filled with ice. Top them with sprays of fresh mint dipped in ice-water and then dusted with powdered sugar.

Peppermintade.

To two quarts of water add the juice of six lemons, one orange and a half-cupful of pineapple juice. Sweeten to taste with sugar syrup and add six drops of oil of peppermint. Chill and serve with cracked ice and sprays of fresh mint.

Fruit Punch.

Prepare a pint of diced fresh fruit in season, a cupful of lemon juice. Sweeten, and add water and cracked ice sufficient for service.

Advice to Girls

By Annie Laurie

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl eighteen years old and am in love with a young man twenty-one years old. I love him dearly. When I ask him if he loves me, he says there's nothing like love and he certainly cares for me.

When we are alone he acts as though I were the only girl, but when in company he doesn't act the same. I love him dearly. Please tell me what to do.

TROUBLESOME PEGGY.

TROUBLESOME PEGGY: Don't give up this young man's friendship, but don't force your affection on him, my dear. This is not only unwise, but undignified and unladylike. Just be yourself and let any declaration of love come from him.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl eighteen years old and dearly love a young man one year my senior. We have been writing for some time, but he did not answer my last letter, and it has been over a month since I heard from him. I wrote him another letter, but he does not answer. Should I write again? I know he is not sick. If he has ceased loving me how can I gain his love again?

LONESOME BLUE EYES.

LONESOME BLUE EYES: If you made any further attempt to correspond with the young man, you would cheapen yourself very much, my dear. Let him take the next step toward renewing your friendship.

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a girl in my teens. I have been going out with a young man three years my senior. I love him dearly, and he seems to love me very much.

Last night I went to a dance with him and there was a girl who seemed to attract him. Could you please tell me how I could be more attractive to him? What would you talk about if a young man called at your home? Is it proper for a girl to ask a young man to meet her again?

THE VAMP OF I. G.

THE VAMP OF I. G.: Keep yourself posted on the topics of the day by reading the papers and magazines, my dear. Then you should never be at a loss for conversation.

It is entirely correct to invite a young man to call at your home again, but let him suggest the time for any other engagement.

Annie Laurie will welcome letters of inquiry on subjects of feminine interest from young women readers of this paper and will reply to them in these columns. Letters to Miss Laurie should be addressed to her, in care of this office.

Tomorrow's HOROSCOPE

By Genevieve Kemble

THURSDAY, JULY 19.

According to this day's stellar motions, business matters should thrive under the beneficent sway of the Jupiter and Mars intervention. Under this rulership large projects should be essayed with the prospect of financial success. In other directions, however, there may be peculiar or intriguing situations, with the possibility of accident or other untoward event. And under an afflicted phase of Venus, there may be complications in domestic, social or affectional affairs.

Those whose birthday it is have the forecast of an active year and one of new enterprises, which should result in financial success. They should be on guard against accident or injuries. Domestic and affectional matters should be fortified against trouble and disappointment. A child born on this day should succeed and rise in life through its own enterprise and industry. In its personal and domestic affairs it should be trained to avoid carelessness and untidiness.

BOOM KENYON AND JOHNSON

REPUBLICANS MOVE FAST TO HEAD OFF THIRD PARTY.

Kenyon Backers Say He Would Have Farmer, Labor and Soldier Votes—Standpats Favor Johnson.

WASHINGTON, July 18.—A brand new presidential boom for Hiram Johnson as the compromise candidate between Mr. Harding and Senator LaFollette was being built today upon the wreckage of the republican defeat in Minnesota.

Johnson's friends are not the only ones behind the boom. Some standpat leaders were discussing seriously the availability of the California senator for the republican nomination to head off a third party move by Senator LaFollette.

While there is yet no apparent basis for an assumption that a third party is to be a certainty, there is no doubt that republican leaders are giving this possibility close and serious attention. Agricultural discontent would give the Wisconsin senator better than an even break in the west, it was conceded.

Johnson's friends plan to send up a trial balloon on July 23 when the senator is scheduled to return to New York abroad the Leviathan after four and a half months in Europe.

It is reported that a reception committee headed by such men as Otto H. Kahn of Kuhn, Loeb and company, Clarence H. Mackay of the Postal Telegraph and Cable company; Frank A. Munsey, the publisher, and many others of political prominence will be on the dock to meet Johnson.

NEW YORK, July 18.—A representative group of progressives have conferred and decided to back William S. Kenyon of Iowa, former United States senator and now federal judge, for the presidency of the United States in the 1924 elections.

An effort will be made, it is now predicted, to put Kenyon before the republican convention as an opposition candidate to President Harding. If he fails of nomination, an independent movement probably will be started.

Kenyon was selected as a compromise choice between the varying progressives. It is believed he, more than any other man, can attempt to join the dissatisfied republican elements, the near-progressives and ultra-progressives.

Those who are backing the movement say Kenyou would have the farmer vote, the soldier vote and the labor vote. He could come nearer than anyone to joining the Borah group, the Johnson group, the La-Follette group, the Norris group and all those other various groups which—while they sympathize in most principles—vary widely in others.

Only one American regiment in Cuba, the Rough Riders, was armed with the machete. The others were provided with combination pliers and wire-cutters, to cut down Spanish fences. The dynamite guns were making much trouble for the Spanish troops who called them "devil engines."

President McKinley issued a proclamation providing in general terms for the government of the province of Santiago de Cuba. It was the first document of the kind ever prepared by a president of the United States.

Conoah Hanks, supposed to be the richest man in Otoe county, a farmer, had disappeared from his home, and it was feared that some calamity had befallen him. His home was the finest farm house in the country. He had taken the homestead before the war.

BRIEF STATE NEWS.

Irwin, Ia.—C. H. Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Wilson, of Lincoln, Neb., visited several days at the D. A. Wilson home here. On their return Monday the Misses Irene and Lucille Wilson accompanied them for a visit.

Omaha—Marriage licenses were issued here to Theodore G. Goldammen, thirty-one, of Lincoln, and Adelaide Phelan, twenty-one, of Mead; Kelley F. Warren, twenty-one, of La Platte, and Beulah E. Collins, twenty-one, of Ft. Crook; Commodore N. Kelley, twenty-seven, and Laura G. Guttner, twenty-three, both of Havelock.

OMAHA—Michael F. Dempsey, police chief, left an estate estimated at only $1,000, all in personal property, according to a petition to probate his will, filed in county court. The will dated November 14, 1921, leaves everything to the widow, Mrs Catherine L. Dempsey.

Kearney—The city of Kearney has engaged an engineer who is to make a survey of the storm sewer needs of the community and also an estimate of the cost of reconstruction of the municipally owned water works plant. It has been roughly estimated the cost of both improvements contemplated will exceed a quarter of a million dollars and may reach $300,000. Following the engineer's report and recommendation a special election will be held and the issue will be put up squarely to the citizens for disposal.

WALT MASON

Whose prose poems appear regularly in The Evening Journal. George Ade calls him "The high priest of horse sense."

A PROTEST

By Strickland Gillilan.

These dicks who ape old Uncle Walt should be compelled to call a halt—their dope has grown archaic. In every case they fall so short they make the angry reader snort—their prose-verse is prosaic.

Now Walt himself is never stale; his kick and punch can never fail; we'll read him till we die. But when these mocking bards break loose they weary us to beat the deuce—their "humor" makes us cry. They always have a limp or two in every batch of rot they do—old Walt has never faltered; they always pull a phony rime that is a literary crime — their winged horse should be haltered.

'Twas ever thus. When some keen jay grew famous and had baled some hay, a horde of pikers aped him. They could not know that every bird whose song is with such pleasure heard, is as the good Lord shaped him; or that all phony ikes who think they hit the mark are on the blink and turn their reader's tummies. I scan them always with a roar and find myself ungodly sore—a murrain on the dummies!

Then here's to Uncle Walt HIMSELF; may no dust-covered closet shelf e'er hold the lyre he twiddles. But for these bungling copy-cats whose belfries are so full of bats—I ache to bust their fiddles.

Your Problems

BY MARY GORDON

Dear Mary Gordon: Why is it when we grow old and need our children's love and kindness they do not want to bother with us. I live on the same block one daughter does.

She never calls on me to ask how I am unless she or one of her girls need me to help them. Granddaughters the same way living within two blocks. Now that I am not able to sew for the family another one living in the country has dropped me. Have always tried to do everything in my power for them. I now am all alone. Is it right to be so used by your children?—A Lonesome Mother.

A. Your children probably think you prefer to live alone. Most older people desire to keep their own homes. Couldn't you find some homeless old lady to live with you, if you need company? There are lots who would be glad of the chance, I am sure.

No, it is not right for your children to ignore you, but maybe you have all become a bit "set in your ways." It is very easy, you know. You might overcome this by feeling free to drop in upon them whenever you feel like it and frankly tell them you are lonesome alone. It might be that they do not realize it. Many other parents could tell the same story, solitude, misunderstanding, loneliness.

My Dear Miss Gordon: Is it harmful to use an oil polish mop on waxed or varnished floors? If so what should be used instead?

Is it newer and later to dispense with roller shades on windows? What does one do for a substitute?

I am expecting to re-curtain my bedrooms, dining room and parlor. Would you give me some idea of what materials to use and whether I should use draperies or valances or both in the different rooms? I presume it is a matter of preference but I would like your opinion. The rooms are of average size and height, with tripple windows in the bedroom and parlor, small windows over the bookcase on each side of the fireplace; and a full glass door leading from the dining room to a side porch with a window on each side of the door. I wish to fix the rooms in the best of taste regardless of the cost.

Where an upper and lower sash curtain are used on the two sections of the window, so that the lower pushes up with the window what kind of a roller shade is used and how is it placed? Would it pull over the lower curtain?

What is the correct way for a married woman to sign her name to (1) business letters, (2) social letters, (3) checks?

At a very informal wedding where the bride wears a suit would it be permissable for her, instead of removing the left glove, to tuck the fingers in at the wrist of both gloves or of just the left glove, when elbow length gloves are worn?

A. Oil mops do not harm waxed or polished floors.

Roller shades are always used, but the casement treatment is a good substitute if you wish to employ it. The curtains may be of lace, heavy pongee colored curtain material, figured or changeable silks. A fringe is used which hangs even with the bottom of the curtain. For instance if your hem is two inches wide, the fringe should also be two inches wide and should be fastened to the top of the hem. The curtains should be mounted on rings, so they can be drawn back and forth.

If your livingroom and dining room are papered alike, they should be draped alike. Otherwise, a different treatment is advisable. You might use the casement treatment in changeable silk. For instance if the curtains are a blended rose and blue, make your valance at the top of plain blue or rose. For the bedroom, ruffled curtains are best, with plain or changeable draperies. Plain white or ivory voile could be used with a fringe. Cretonne or hand blocked linen is also good. The small windows over the bookcases and the French door and its accompanying windows should be treated the same as the larger windows. If the porch to which the French door leads is enclosed the curtains should extend from the bottom of the top row of glass. If the porch is not enclosed, the curtains should extend the full length of the glass. Valances on the small doors should be proportionately small.

When upper and lower sash curtains are used on a window, the roller shade is set on the inside of the run or on the window stop and pulls over the lower curtain.

A married woman signs her name to business and social letters thus: Mary Brown Robinson (Mrs. J. K. Robinson)

Checks are signed in whatever manner you have entered your name when you deposited your account.

It is never good form to tuck in the fingers of a long glove at the wrist, altho it is almost universally done. It would be better to have part of the glove finger of the third hand ripped a tiny bit so that the glove may be slipped off. It may be sewed up again afterward.

When Making Jelly.

A complete schedule of jelly making comprises twelve steps. These are the "does" that must be remembered:

First—Prepare fruit, which should never be over-ripe.

Second—Mash to extract the juice, add water and set to cook.

Third—Pour into sterilized jelly bag to drain.

Fourth—Test for pectin.

Fifth—If no pectin is required, put juice on stove to cook, using a fairly shallow pan for this part of the process.

Sixth—When juice begins to boil add required amount of sugar.

Seventh—Stir till sugar is dissolved.

Eighth—Let boil lively but not too fast.

Ninth—Test for jelly stage by dropping from a silver spoon. If done the jelly will break from the edge of the spoon when cooled slightly.

Tenth—Take from fire and skim.

Eleventh—Pour into hot, sterilized glasses.

Twelfth—When cool and set, cover with melted parafine, cover, label and store.

Don't for the Jelly Maker.

Don't squeeze the juice from the jelly bag. This makes cloudy jelly as the pulp is often forced thru with the juice.

Don't add sugar till the juice has come to a boil.

Don't pour hot jelly into cold glasses. They are apt to crack with the sudden change in temperature.

Don't pour jelly into glasses without skimming until perfectly clear.

Don't over-cook your fruit. When the mass loses its color it is usually ready to drain off the juice.

Don't use inferior or stale fruits. They will spoil the flavor of your jelly.

By Senator Arthur Capper.

TOPEKA, Kas., July 18. — The Minnesota election is a plain case of protest against deplorable conditions prevailing thru the agricultural west. The farmer is today compelled to take less than cost of production for wheat and other farm commodities while nearly everything he buys is still sold at near war prices.

Agricultural relief legislation by the last congress did not consist of instantaneous panaceas but of constructive measures in which farmers themselves must co-operate to realize on them. The efforts have not had time to be tried out and to produce results. In the meantime Minnesota electors by their votes have given notice that profiteering must stop; that the perfectly evident economic wrongs of which they are still victims must be righted immediately and that the farmer's dollars must be worth as much as that of any one else in its purchasing power.

Two factors that I believe had great influence in the Minnesota election and that farmers thruout the west are greatly disturbed over the high freight rates and excessive tariff duties on necessities of life.

The Minnesota vote is notice of the farmers demand for freight charges that prices can pay. These rates today are higher than the traffic will bear. It also is plain that they demand further reduction in tariff duties. The tariff commission and the president must give relief under the authority conferred by the Fordney-McCumber act or the next congress will promptly revise the tariff downward in a way that will make drastic reductions.

Victim's Young Son Tells of Mother's Infatuation for Man Taken in by Italian Contractor.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Ambresto Gilberto, a tailor, alleged to have eloped recently with the victim's wife, was hunted by police today as the slayer of Cologero Salerno, a contractor.

Frank, thirteen, the slain man's son, said Gilberto was taken into his father's home when he was penniless and begging for a place to sleep.

Shortly afterward Gilberto and Mrs. Salerno disappeared.

Salerno was shot down on a crowded street. The assailant leaped into a car driven by Charles Goetz, ordering him to "drive like hell." When the auto was stalled by traffic, Goetz was shot and probably fatally wounded.

Mrs. Salerno was taken into custody at the "love nest" where police say she and Gilberto lived but refused to talk.

Corn may more profitably occupy a prominent place in dry-farming operations than the small grains, according to the results often years of crop rotation and cultural experiments just completed at the Scottsbluff experimental farm of the state agricultural college. Its average yield was 20.7 bushels or 1.159 pounds of dry shelled corn per acre in comparison with 786 pounds of winter wheat, the highest yield produced by any small grain. The most successful forage crop was sorghum grown in cultivated rows. Brome grass and alfalfa frequently failed and produced only light yields, the years that they were cut.

THE FELLOW THAT PASSES OUT

FAULTY EQUIPMENT CAUSE OF WRECK

District Attorney Dodd and Assistant District Attorney Thomas Hughes examining rotten guard rail, which, according to reports, had it been substantial, the train would never have fallen to street even if derailed. The June grand jury of Kings county, Brooklyn, has taken up an investigation into the wreck on the elevated line at Atlantic and Flatbush avenues, Brooklyn, N. Y., when a train jumped the tracks and landed in the street forty-feet below, killing seven and injuring eighty-three. Three other investigations are in progress.

GOVERNMENT MAY TAKE STATE OFFER

Directs Inspection of Property at Grand Island Offered by Act of the Last Legislature.

Governor Bryan, under date of June 25, officially tendered to the president of the United States and General Frank T. Hines of the veterans' bureau, the state home for soldiers at Grand Island for federal hospital purposes. The tender was made under provisions of the act of the Nebraska legislature of 1923. The governor set with his offer a description and photographs of the property offered.

General Hines, under date of July 10, has written the governor that he has directed an inspection of the property and that he will take up the offer with the president upon the latter's return to Washington.

Federal inspectors are expected to call upon Governor Bryan Wednesday afternoon. The last legislature passed a bill offering the property to the United States upon condition that the veterans and women now members of the home be provided for and housed by the government so long as they shall live. A similar offer was made by a former legislature, but nothing came of it, the federal government instead selecting a hospital site in Iowa and later abandoning it.

LAKEVIEW MAN DISMISSED

C. G. Adair Is Acquitted of Charge of Driving an Auto While Drunk.

C. G. Adair, of Lakeview, was dismissed by Police Judge Chappell Wednesday forenoon of a charge of driving an auto while drunk. An auto driven by the defendant collided with a car driven by Fred Betz, 1435 Rose, on the West O street road near First street at 11:30 p. m. Saturday. Police investigated the smashup and arrested Mr. Adair. Mr Betz testified Wednesday that while driving east returning from Capital Beach he turned out to pass a car ahead of him when hit by Adair's auto. Mr Adair said on the stand that he was going west and was on the north side of the road when Betz's auto swung across and struck him. Officer Waite told of finding the two wrecked machines in a ditch at the north side of the road. Adair said that he had taken one drink Saturday night but was not intoxicated.

BURDEN OF EMPLOYER

Commissioner Frye Requires Proof of Intentional Willful Neglect on Part of Employe

In the case of J. S. Carmichael against Walter Yates company of Lincoln State Compensation Commissioner L. B. Frye holds that when a defendant in a compensation case sets up a defense of willful negligence on the part of the injured workman the burden of proof upon the defendant is to prove not willful negligence but intentional willful negligence. The employe in this case was a sausage maker. He injured his finger which later had to be amputated. He is allowed $15 a week compensation for three weeks and $15 a week for seven and one-half weeks for 50 per cent loss of the use of one finger, making about $150 in all, together with medical expenses.

James Allsup, employe of Schollman Bros. of Omaha is allowed $15 a week until the end of his disability for an injury to his knee which later developed blood poisoning. The compensation commissioner disregards a statement made by the workman when he was suffering with fever and holds that he was an employe in the course of his duty when injured, April 11.

HIGHER COST NOT FAULT OF ZONING

Commissioner Cowgill Says That Inspection Now Inadequate and He Desires to Put Right Foot Forward.

Zoning will not add to the cost of efficient government, according to Commissioner Cowgill. With zoning just over the bill, however, he proposes to correct present inadequacies. He contends that the present system of inspection is very bad. He proposes to add five employes to the engineering payroll. These should be added, he says, regardless of zoning. He expects to pay these additional salaries thru a boost in building permit cost. Permits to build now come to 50 cents a thousand or fraction thereof—not per thousand permits but per thousand dollars estimated cost.

Mr Cowgill expects to put it on an area basis instead of a cost basis. He suggests a material increase in cost—$7.50 for one now costing $2.50. But he proposes to give something in return.

"Adequate inspection. That's it," said he. "People are paying now for something they are not getting—real inspection. I propose to reduce building inspection to a science. There should be inspection of the framing before plaster, chimney inspection, plumbing inspection, wire inspection and overall inspection then issuance of certificate of occupancy."

The addition of five employes then, is not due to zoning tho it is the purpose of the commissioner to see that the system is started right. He hasn't his five men and may not get them but he will argue for them. He believes that it will require two men to do the volume of work done by the late city engineer George W. Bates. He therefore suggests as one of the five, an engineer for the technical staff.

NOT SERIOUS SAYS JUDGE

REFUSES TO GRANT DIVORCES TO "HASTY" NUPTIALS.

Many Couples Dissatisfied in Judge Morning's "Matrimonial Wash-day"—Marriage Must Mean More, He Says.

"Young people now-a-days make too light of marriage," said District Judge Morning Wednesday regarding his 'matrimonial washday'," in the future it will be my policy to impress upon their minds that a marriage ceremony means something and that they can't order a divorce as they do their groceries for dinner."

"I have set eleven cases for trial today, most of which are too thin to warrant my giving a decree. In these cases I have granted separate maintainance," he continued. "In the future I shall be more strict."

All of the cases that were given a rehearing Wednesday had been under the court's advisement for some time owing to the fact that there was a reasonable doubt in the mind of the court as to whether or not there were sufficient grounds for action.

The case of Julia E. Culp against William S. Culp was dismissed on the plaintiff's petition but the defendant has filed a cross petition which will be given a hearing at a later date. Carrie Fay French was denied a divorce from her present spouse Charles Frank French. Pearl Corr was given a decree of separate maintainance from William Corr as was Maude Mestre from Wave Mestre. Dorothy A. Portlock was granted a decree of divorce from Ross A. Portlock.

Mildred Craig was denied a divorce from Clyde Craig on her petition but the defendant has filed a cross petition charging her with extreme cruelty, refusal to cook or wash the clothes or to properly assume the household duties. He also states that upon one occasion she struck him with a table leaf with such force as to knock him senseless. Action on this and other petitions not yet finished will be resumed in the Wednesday afternoon session.

FEED WHEAT TO THE HOGS

Worth a Dollar a Bushel If Used That Way, Says Head of Kansas Extension.

H. Umberger, who is head of the extension department of the college of agriculture in Kansas, has advised the sixty agricultural county agents under his direction to encourage farmers to feed their wheat to hogs.

Wheat is bringing 75 cents a bushel at Kansas elevators. Umberger says that the present market situation, never before parallelled in the history of the state, makes it possible for the wheat grower to get a dollar a bushel if he sells it in the form of pork.

According to experiment station tests, wheat at 70 cents a bushel will produce 100 pounds of gain on 100 pound shoats at a cost of $6.06. Corn at 90 cents a bushel will make the same gain for $8.32, when both are fed with a 10 per cent takage ration. The difference is a net saving of $2.26. Without the tankage supplement the margin in favor of wheat is even higher.

Whole wheat should not be fed to hogs. Coarse grinding or cracking improves the feeding value from 16 to 22 per cent. Wheat ground too fine forms a sticky mass in the hog's mouth and should be fed only in a slop.

A self-feeder is a satisfactory method of feeding the ground wheat. The tankage can be fed in a separate compartment or mixed with wheat. Seventy cent wheat makes it advisable to put spring pigs on a full ration in order to get them up to 200 or 225 pounds as quickly as possible.

At one of the golf clubs a young lady who is very popular with the caddies arranged a match with an elderly woman who flatters herself that she can play. The young lady, an excellent golfer, wished to lose the game out of courtesy and for social reasons but her opponent was in her worst form and it seemed impossible to keep from winning. Finally she whispered to her caddy that she wanted to lose.

"Ah, miss," he said, "I didn't know it. Here I've been stamping on her ball every time it got in the long grass.—Boston Transcript.

CASE OF LIFE PRISONER UNDER CONSIDERATION.

State Board Finds Turpitude of Crime Lessened by Reason of Fact He Killed Man in Resort.

Governor Bryan, chairman of the state pardon board, has not confirmed the report that the board intends to commute the sentence of Tony Ciarletta, Omaha murderer who is serving a life sentence, so that the prisoner will be liberated one year from now, but he said all members of the board had signed a statement in which they say they haven't yet decided but have the matter under consideration. The statement of the board indicates that it is merely a question of how long the prisoner should be held before he is released.

The prisoner has requested a commutation that will cut his sentence to fourteen years. It is rumored the board may reduce it to fifteen years. Nine years and four months already served, with good time allowance, makes about fourteen years for the prisoner.

Ciarletta, says the board, was only eighteen years of age when he and two others held up and robbed the Hazel McVey resort in Omaha in 1914. He is now twenty-eight. The board finds he has a splendid record at the prison and has neglected no opportunity to better his education, that the two others who were with him in the holdup and murder were older than he and both died in the penitentiary.

Henry E. Niskel a bank clerk was shot and killed in the holdup. Ciarletta escaped, came to Lincoln disposed of some jewelry here which led to his exposure and subsequent arrest at Pueblo. He was employed during his stay in Lincoln as a bell boy in a hotel.

The decision of the board to take further time to consider the case is considered a bid for an expression of public opinion as to what ought to be done by the board. This paragraph is a part of the board's decision to defer action for the present.

"There are but few who would claim that the majesty of the law demands that this young man should be held in the penitentiary until he suffers the same fate as his comrades now in the prison grave yard. That would not be tempering justice with mercy. It is not at all unlikely that under the circumstances of this case the law has been fairly well vindicated. We do not wish to infer that the inmates of a house of ill fame or those who frequent such a place should be deprived of all the benefits of the law. We feel, however, that in so far as such people are contributors to law violation, they, in a measure, invite whatever results may come. In this case the turpitude of the crime is lessened to that extent."

Cromwell affirmed on the stand. He said that the lights from two passing cars blinded him, causing him to not see the parked auto until upon it. Mr. Crist declares that a tail light was burning on the rear of his auto. Mr. Cromwell said that he has been working for State Sheriff Carroll since last February. He told of Harmon purchasing the bottle of liquor for $2.50. "We and the boy were alone," said Cromwell, "and we didn't want to search the place then." Cromwell admitted that he had been convicted a year ago on a charge of illegal possession of liquor and a still and served sixty days in jail. Harmon told on the stand of buying the liquor. "I took one drink in the house," he said, "and it had an awful wallop."

Deputy State Sheriffs Broady and J. H. Miller each took the stand and testified on the behalf of Cromwell, who, has been working with them in the employ of the state, A. J. Greer, driver of the taxicab that took the defendants to a doctor, Raymond Johnson, of Columbus, and F. A. Holmes, of University Place, testified that the defendants had not showed any signs of being intoxicated.

State Sheriff Tom Carroll issued the following statement in answer to the statement of Judge Chappell as quoted to him:

"If the police judge has been correctly quoted to me I am much surprised. If he has any suggestions looking to better law enforcement, we will be glad to get them. Before the court will issue a search warrant, it is necessary to show that a buy was made at the residence within thirty days prior to issuance. I did not feel and do not feel that the policies or methods of this department were in question in this case. The only question is whether or not the men are guilty."

consult the records before he speaks." Mr. Sommer added:

"According to Bryan's statement as published the contractor was paid in full altho 'a small part of the work had not been approved,'—therefore the road 'had not been maintained by the county'—'it will require practically as much work to put it into condition as to build a new road'—'the original estimated cost being $71,000' and finally 'I have not yet found out how the contractor could get his full pay before the work was completed and approved.'

"As to the facts," says Mr. Sommer, "Project No. 111 had been split up into at least five different jobs and these let to four different contractors. Four of these jobs covering paving culverts bridges and guard rail, representing over one half of the total cost of the project have been accepted by the state and paid for during Bryan's regime, during April and June 1923 except a balance of $161.00 to the Norfolk Bridge company still due.

"There is only a question about the grading. A stretch of the road it seems did not come up to the requirements and the state would not accept the grading. No work has been done on the road since and no doubt the road has washed and is in bad condition. It will require some grading evidently but of course there will be no hills to be excavated and there seems to be no need of letting the people get the idea that it will cost as much to fix up the road as to build the whole project.

"As far as the state auditor's department is concerned the grading contractors were paid because the department of public works sent to the state auditor's office about October 11, 1922 a so called 'final estimate voucher' indicating that the work contracted for had been completed and accepted by the state.

"The correctness of the claim was certified to by Geo. E. Johnson per Geo. K. Leonard assistant secretary and approved by Samuel R. McKelvie per Phil Bross secretary of finance. The number of the warrant is 13115. On the voucher full details were given showing the number of cubic yards excavated, etc. The bill was checked by the auditor found figured correctly and since the claim appeared proper and regular and vouched for by the proper authorities a warrant was issued. It is not the function of the state auditor to make a final inspection of roads and he has no engineers on his staff. He must rely on the departments of public works and finance.

"It appears the department of public works sent this voucher to the state auditor because they had received from their engineers or chief of the roads bureau a report indicating that the work of the grading contracts had been completed and that they were entitled to receive their pay.

Telltale Symptoms of Woman's Ills

Every woman who suffers from backache, headaches, dragging-down pains, nervousness, irregularities, displacements, irritability, or despondency should recognize in such symptoms some derangement of her system which should have attention before some more serious ailment develops. These conditions are often evidenced by a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude and sleeplessness. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been pre-eminently successful in overcoming such conditions and it is now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills.—Advertisement.

Rickard Uncertain as to Place and Date of Next Title Bout

BUT FIRPO WILL BE CHAMP'S OPPONENT

Next Titular Go May Be Staged in United States and Possibly in South America—Kearns Prefers Labor Day.

By Henry L. Farrell.

NEW YORK, July 18—Another promise of "something today or tomorrow" about the Dempsey-Firpo heavyweight championship match was made today by Tex Rickard.

"There are just a few little details to get straightened out before I can make a definite announcement of when and where the match is to be held," Rickard said.

Rickard was willing to say positively that the South American would meet Dempsey for the title before the end of the year, either in the United States or South America.

"I have Firpo under contract to meet Dempsey this year and if I am unable to make the match I am no promoter," Rickard said

Jack Kearns, manager of the champion, takes the stand that he does not care where the fight is to be held. He · more interested in the date as he wants to send Dempsey against Firpo and Wills before the end of the year

Kearns prefers Labor day for the Firpo match and he wants the Wills bout in or near New York around world's series time. Getting a world's heavyweight championship near the time of the baseball classic may cause the major league magnates to froth some more and they have been frothing plenty all summer because so many fine boxing cards have been placed in competition with the "grand old national pastime."

International Sport Honors Of Early Season On American Brows

Tennis Cracks From U. S. A. Demonstrate Superiority and Golfers Do the Same Thing at Troon.

By Paul R. Mallon.

NEW YORK, July 18.—America has carried off the honors in early season international sport competition.

Yankee athletes, who sailed to Europe this spring and summer to meet the best of the old continent in competition, have returned with unprecedented laurels.

The American Walker cup team started things off when, with a brilliant spurt the United States golfers came from behind and downed the Britishers. It was a victory for Yankee coolness and courage.

Then Charlie Paddock went to France, despite the protestations of the A. A. U. and smashed a few sprint records for French spectators. The American girl swimming champions also went over, but they heeded the demands of the A. A. U. and did not compete.

William M. Johnston borrowed a tennis racquet and cleaned up the hard courts at St. Cloud, France, defeating all comers for the championship of the world.

American golf professionals went to Troon and, altho they lost first place to the brilliant Britisher Arthur Havers, they took the next three places and played the best collective golf of the tournament. In prize matches they carried the honors and won most of the money.

Then, for the climax, Johnston and Francis T. Hunter decided to stage an all-American finals in the all-England tennis tournament. They beat down the British men in the singles and won first and second place for America.

Only Vincent Richards, the youthful Yonkers star, fell below the mark that had been hopefully set for him, but the performance of Johnston and Hunter more than made up for this.

The matches at Wimbledon proved what already had been known—that the United States probably has the best three tennis players in the world. The three can be selected from William T. Tilden, the champion; Bill Johnston, Francis Hunter and Vincent Richards.

With this array of stars there seems to be no doubt about who is going to retain the Davis cup.

But it also was shown that America is woefully weak in the doubles, mixed doubles and women's singles. This is a situation that should be remedied, if someone could induce the stars to bend their efforts toward team play.

It is not enough that America should have the best players. She should have the best teams.

LITTLE LESSONS IN GOLF

What is a cure for topping?

Answered By JIM BARNES.

American open champion, 1921: recognized everywhere as one of the greatest golfers in the world. In British open championship, 1922, he finished second, one stroke behind Walter Hagen, the winner.

Here is the big cause of topping—remove it and you remove the evil: Topping is caused chiefly by lifting the head and swinging the body during the back swing. Turning the left knee and the left shoulder slightly down and toward the ball will help to keep the head in the right position. Merely watching the ball is no cure for topping—the head must be stationary.

Sportorial

There are two women golfers in the United States who are going at a rate at present which should throw a scare into the two British stars, Joyce Wethered and Cecil Leitch. They are Alexa Stirling, who recently won the metropolitan women's championships, and Glenna Collett, the American champion. A match between the two wouldn't be uninteresting, and a foursome with the British stars should bring down the house.

Blood will tell. Tommy Burns is a thorobred jockey. A few years ago his father was the premier jockey of the American turf. His mother was the daughter of Jimmy McLaughlin, a leading rider of his time. His uncle, Guy Burns, ranked with the top-notchers.

Now young Tommy is coming along to set a new pace for them all.

George Owen is passing from Harvard by graduation. He has won the Crimson H nine times over a space of three years at the university. Harvard is mourning his passing. He will be sorely missed.

A wave of influenza has prevented development of the two-year-old thorobreds of the season. The epidemic is said to have been more serious than last year.

Sam Hildreth, trainer for the Rancocas stables and producer of Zev, had thirty-two two-year-olds in his stable, and every one was a victim.

They are beginning to get back into form now, but it will probably be several weeks more before the outstanding stars develop their natural ability.

Charlie White and Carl Tremaine are probably the hardest hitters in their class, but it is doubtful whether either will ever win a title. They seem to suffer from the same affliction. A hard blow cramps their style.

White's trouble apparently is his inability to think quickly when hard pressed by an opponent. Tremaine becomes discouraged when the going is rough.

HOOVER'S WONDERFUL RACE IN DIAMOND SCULLS

BECKETT AND GEORGES IN FORENSIC BATTLE

Georges Carpentier and Joe Beckett still are names with which to conjure money and publicity in Europe.

The farce they staged recently when they went thru all the motions of being matched again in a new fight, occupied columns of the London newspapers.

It seems Beckett's hands are bad. The Englishman said he couldn't fight on July 19, the date first set for the contest. Carpentier then asked that the match be made for July 26, but Beckett frowned on that.

Then Carpentier went to a doctor and had his hands examined.

Carpentier's physicians said his hands were in worse condition than Beckett's.

Beckett's physician contended his hands were in worse condition than Carpentier's.

So the only fight anyone could stir up between these two beaten ex-champions who were sought for a "consolation" match, was over who had the worst hands.

It seems to be a draw.

DO YOU KNOW?

Did the Phillies ask waivers on Clarence Mitchell? PHILLY.

Yes. Waivers were asked in May, but due to Mitchell's splendid pitching since then, they have undoubtedly been withdrawn.

Is a baserunner permitted to attempt to score on a foul fly? M. P. S.

A baserunner is permitted to advance after a fly catch of any kind However, most outfielders prefer to ignore or purposely muff a foul fly with a runner on third and no chance of cutting a run off at the plate

Was Miller Huggins a good batter? T. A. Y.

Considering the "lively" ball was not in vogue in his day, Huggins batted well. He hit for a grand average of 265 in 1,573 major league games from 1904 to 1916.

Marr Would Buy Our Mister Dye

"Badly in need of second baseman. Would you consider parting with Scott Dye?"

So read a telegram received Tuesday afternoon by C. N. Moon, one of the Lincoln club owners, from Runt Marr, now managing the Springfield, Mo., club of the Western association.

"No can do," or words to that effect was the answer sent by Magnate Moon.

Two Fairbury players have already reported to the Ft. Smith, Ark., club of the same league. They are Johnny Mee, field captain and third baseman of the Coyotes and Hostetter, pitcher.

George "Mahogany" Bliss, center fielder of uncanny hitting and fielding ability, sold sometime ago to the Houston, Tex., club of the Texas league by Manager Segrist, is also understood to have changed his mind about not wanting to go south. He's expected to report within the week.

Lincoln Shoots Wires to Owners of Clubs in South Dakota League Which Has Blown Up.

The South Dakota league, composed of Aberdeen, Watertown, Sioux Falls and Mitchell, has gone up, and the Lincoln club owners are communicating with the South Dakota magnates with the idea of obtaining some players. C. N. Moon shot wires to all points in the league Wednesday and was contemplating making the trip into South Dakota if the telegrams failed to get action.

The South Dakota league directors met here with the state league officials this spring in an effort at consolidation of the two.

"Bob Whites" Requiem.

Once, twenty-five or thirty years ago, I was out with a hunting party, looking for quail. We stopped at a farm house where we saw a sprightly old lady working about the yard, the day being clear but cold, and asked her if we might have her permission to hunt on her farm. I can remember just how she pushed back her bonnet and looked us over, to see if she knew any of the party. "Now boys," she said, "I don't like to refuse you, but I don't like to have the little birdies all killed, either. They are seldom disturbed here, and they come up close to the house and I like to hear them calling 'Bob White' to each other. But I guess you may go over to the far side of the place, and don't shoot till you get away so I can't hear it. If I hear your guns, I'll feel like some little bird may be losing his life." So we moved on, after thanking her, and she shouted after us, "I hope you don't find any little birds to shoot!" * * * A few days ago, I was asked to go out in the country to sing at that old lady's funeral. It was a beautiful day, and as we were standing around out of doors, waiting for the clock to point to the time to begin the service, I heard a quail call his clear, almost shrill "Bob White"—and in a moment another quail answered from another direction. In a few minutes we moved into the house and sang our opening hymn. And all thru the beautiful, impressive service I could hear the quail calling "Bob White," in all directions, and seeming to be coming closer and closer until they were apparently but a few yards away. It was not hard to imagine that some mysterious influence, some tie of affection drew the little birds toward their friend and protector who would soon be buried out of their sight.—Tom Thompson in Howard Courant.

LATEST MARKETS

CHICAGO, July 18.—Grain prices scored substantial gains on the Chicago board of trade today. Sharp advances during the morning were only slightly affected by selling pressure near the close. The cash market closed higher.

After advancing from 1¼ to 1¾c over last night's close, wheat closed for the day at about ¼c under the day's high mark.

Crop news was exceedingly optimistic from all sections of the belt with the exception of Aberdeen, S. D. The Toronto National Bank of Commerce estimated the Canadian crop would show a yield of 22 to 25 bushels per acre, or from 170 to 150 per cent above the ten-year average. There was excited coverings by short interests, however, which sustained prices near the early high levels. Profit-taking sales late in the day were responsible for the slight drop.

Corn was in a healthy position with prices fluctuating about like wheat. There was a marked widening between July and the more deferred deliveries. Shorts were covering in July and selling the later months. Crop news was favorable.

Oats, after advancing with other grains, failed to reflect the late weakness, holding at strong values thruout the session. Trade was light and mostly by local handlers.

Provisions were weak.

CHICAGO, July 18.—Grain prices opened higher on the Chicago board of trade today. The local trade was of the opinion the decline had run its course and higher values were now to be expected.

Wheat at the start reflected higher prices at Liverpool, but before the trade had progressed ten minutes there was sufficient bullish news of a domestic nature to boost prices to still higher levels. Receipts were 58 cars.

Corn continued in the same position, prices advancing steadily during the opening minutes and holding fully steady. The cash situation remained tight and receipts were again light at 150 cars.

Oats prices were unchanged to fractionally higher at the outset and continued an upward trend in line with the other grains. Receipts 60 cars.

Provisions started lower.

Chicago Tribune Report.

CHICAGO, July 18.—There were reports of wheat being fed to livestock in place of corn in Ohio, a practice that is likely to increase unless there is a widening in the price between the two grains.

Aggressive buying of September corn by houses with eastern connections more than offset the decline in wheat.

Farmers having old oats testing materially over the regular limit, thirty-two pounds, are advised to sell them, as they bring big premiums, 3 to 4 cents, over July. It makes a difference of $100 to $250 per car to the farmers and interior holders at present premiums.

It is proposed to change the discounts on No. 3 grades of barley from 5 and 7 cents and make them 7 and 9 cents per bushel.

Country offerings of oats to arrive show signs of increasing as harvesting is making rapid progress.

Technically, the wheat market is in a position where prices might rally sharply should anything new happen to start good buying of sufficient force to absorb the constantly increasing hedging sales and make shorts uneasy. Prices were in new low ground but aside from that there was little on which to interest investors other than the low price.

There is a belief among a number of traders who have been bearish for several months that wheat prices are low enough. One large operator who has been bearish said that he was on the constructive side of wheat.

Farmers are selling wheat more freely and hedging pressure is increasing. This requires more speculative and export buying to absorb the surplus and makes it more difficult to sustain values.

Flour stocks in the United States and Canada on July 1 were 2,371,000 barrels against 2,307,000 barrels July 1 and 1,700,000 barrels last year.

Grain Market Opinions.

E. Lowitz & Co.: We look for lower levels.

Hulburd Warren & Chandler: A continuation of bullish northwest reports should encourage outside interest.

Harris Winthrop & Co.: During this latest decline from around $1.04 there has been apparently a growing tension of nervousness in the trade.

Stein Alstrin: Technical conditions favor a moderate rally in all grains.

Thomson McKinnon: The outlook is for buying power inadequate to absorb the movement of new wheat crop.

Simpson: It looks to me as if around these levels there should be a good reaction in the wheat market. Sentiment is more optimistic and it looks like there is an expansion in the investment demand. With the tight situation in cash corn short sellers, I do not believe, are going to make much headway unless a liberal cash movement develops.

Uhlmann Grain Co.: At present levels see no inducement to either buy or sell wheat.

Clement Curtis & Co.: Country offerings of new wheat are said to be fairly large.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Kansas Weekly Report.

TOPEKA, Kas., July 18.—Corn was especially favored by the week's weather. It is nearly all in silk and tassel in the counties farthest south and from 10 to 25 per cent of it is tasseling elsewhere except in the western counties and silks showing in the Kaw valley in the eastern third and in the central third as far north as Concordia. It has an extremely good color and is making rapid growth in all parts. Some fields have been laid by weedy, but this complaint is not a general one. There are also complaints of chinch-bug damage in the eastern counties.

Wheat harvest is over except in the northwestern counties. In the extreme southern counties east of Barber almost half the crop is threshed. The continued rains have been detrimental to wheat in the shock, a little of which is reported to be sprouting. Threshing was greatly retarded in the north central and northeastern counties.

Barley is mostly out. Summer plowing for wheat has begun in the southern half of the state and in counties farther north where wheat was hauled out a few weeks ago. The ground generally is in good condition for this work.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Hungerford's Report.

VALLEY CITY, N. D., July 18.—In fourteen counties in the northern part of this state lying east of the Missouri and west of Red river, wheat may make an average yield of seven bushels per acre, providing general rain comes very soon. Otherwise about a quarter of the territory will produce little oats and the rye is extremely poor. Corn just fair. Large number of grasshoppers in several localities and a moderate amount of rust around New Rockford and Carrington.—Lamson Bros. & Co.

Wall Street Journal Review.

NEW YORK, July 18.—Prices were higher in the stock market today on a fairly active trade. Rails were firm and more active with Baltimore & Ohio up to 48¾, while Delaware & Hudson, Northern Pacific and Southern Pacific were all above Tuesday's closing. Expectation of dividends on Baltimore & Ohio this year is causing its firmness.

The leading industrial issues all bettered their previous closing levels. Steel, common, being an exception at 90¼, off ⅛. Studebaker was up ¼ at 103½ and then sold to 103¾, the high price reached on the rally last Saturday.

The foreign news was better, including the preparations of the British to execute military and naval forces from Turkey and the forecast of the British reparations note to the effect that it proposes additional safeguards for France as well as an international commission to fix the reparations.

Opening prices included: American Sugar 62¾, up ½; United States Steel 90¾, off ⅛, Pan-American 63, American Can 89¼, up ¼; Baldwin 119⅞, up ⅛; B & O 48¾, up ¼. Fighting Alcohol in France.

Even France is awakening to the perils of the liquor traffic. This nation, which leads all Europe in the consumption of alcoholic beverages, where the poets have sung for a thousand years the supposed glories of the glittering goblet, has at last come to realize that strong drink is a liability, socially, economically and nationally. To fight this modern plague, La Ligue Nationale Contre l'Alcoolisme has been formed, and its name sufficiently indicates its purpose—to fight against alcohol, at all times, at all places, with every possible weapon. Nor is the league the fad or plaything of a few well-meaning fanatics, for it has over 2,000 branches, over 10,000 members, and its president is Monsieur Herriot, mayor of Lyons and deputy of the Rhone. In addition, a French admiral and a French general are on its executive board; its work has "crowned" by the French Academy; the government has declared the league a public utility, enabling it thereby to accept legacies, and permission to preach the truth about alcohol in the army and navy has been authorized.

Today the league finds itself engaged in a terrific battle with the French liquor industry. American prohibition being one of the chief points of attack. So complete is the control of the French press by the French liquor interests that the league has great trouble in refuting the false information given out concerning prohibition and its results in America.

But prohibition was not won in a day in America, and so the league, despite almost overwhelming opposition, bravely continues its varied and interesting work in confidence and hope. As in America, it is the indifference of the good people which the stumbling block. To remove this mountain of indifference to arouse the French nation to the seriousness of the peril—that is the job which the league has staked out for itself.

Politically the league is making haste slowly. To demand the passage of a national prohibition law would be poor strategy. It would only evoke derision and ridicule. The hour for this is far in the future. For the present, the league contents itself with the enforcement of existing laws and decrees, the election of deputies favoring prohibition and the education of public opinion.

So, the league is working energetically for the enforcement of the present laws and governmental decrees, and against any modification of them which would benefit the liquor interests.

In parliament, since absolute prohibition is not immediately possible, the league urges the passage of restrictive legislation, which will curb the liquor industry, reduce the number of drinking places, diminish the production of alcoholic beverages, and prohibit the consumption of distilled liquors.

Naturally, the major efforts of the league are directed toward educating the public so that the number of total abstainers may increase, and that more and more depuies favoring resrictive legisltion may be elected to parliament. It is up-hill work, slow and difficult. But an excellent start has been made, and every month sees new recruits enlisted, men, women and children, who promise to abstain personally and to work zealously for the advancement of the cause.—Bernhard Ragner Christian Herald.

The Labor Office.

Today on a high hill overlooking the city of Geneva, up Switzerland way, sits a great institution, busy as a hive of bees, an institution whose purpose it is to sip from the flowering thoughts of all the world and convert its harvest into the honey of "social justice."

This institution, grown in three years from a baby, is the international labor office. It is an agency thru which fifty four nations work in an effort to arrive at co-ordinated action that will improve the conditions of people who toil. It is an agency highly organized to serve that purpose. It maintains a directing staff and a secretariat of more than three hundred persons. That secretariat is recruited from many nations.

The ramifications of this organization extend into the wilds of spacious Canada and to New Zealand in the South Seas. They reach into Cuba, sugar-bowl of the world, and to Persia, where the rugs come from. They encompass Argentine and Palestine. They nestle little Luxemburg, and penetrate to Boliyia, most isolated of nations. They made the contacts of an agency which embraces nearly all the world, outside those two big spots on the map, one in the east and one in the west, which represent Russia and the United States. They set up a network of communications through which nations may work in their desire to make the world a better place in which to live.

All that is done is based upon an annual world conference of the international labor organization, assembled to consider the most vital labor questions that confront mankind. Each nation sends four delegates, two representing the government, one the workers and one the employers. Thus no interest predominates. This international labor conference drafts conventions for the consideration of the member nations. It lays the foundation upon which may be built a system of labor laws that will encompass the world. In the name of fifty-four nations it has approved the eight-hour day in industry, has pronounced against the employment in industry of children under the age of fourteen, has declared for better housing of farm workers, for the extension of workers' compensation to the employees of agriculture. It is selecting one after another of the problems of the worker, considering it in world conference, deciding on the advisable course of action, and driving on toward a world solution.

Despite the multiplicity of language in these world conferences, the diversity of view-point, the conflict of interest, points of national pride and sensitiveness, the international labor conferences are finding certain common ground which makes world action and world progress possible. Every meeting results in substantial accomplishment. The international labor office at Geneva is the permanent secretariat of that conference.—William Atherton Deepy in Christian Herald.

Sentimentalism and Hard Sense.

Senator Royal S. Copeland of New York, spoken of as democratic presidential timber, says: "These poor immigrants set forth with all they have and sail for the lands of their dreams. To them America is like heaven!"

To be sure, it is. And because it is, that is why we ought to let them all in, their misfortunes, woes, ignorance, prejudices, superstitions. And while we are being sentimental, let us not be so narrow, so unchristian, so inhumane as to exclude yellow men, brown men and black men. They all have hearts and feelings. They all are bipeds and humans. They all have souls.

Let the weeping sisters enter. Let the oppressed brothers in. America is an asylum. It's a poor house. It's an international boarding house, tho Roosevelt said it wasn't. Let 'em all in and make 'em happy! If they use bomb and dagger, if they despise us and detest our institutions, if they do lip-service to Washington and Lincoln and real service for Karl Marx and sovietism, if they bring their European hates over here and try to embroil us with the other half of the English speaking world—what of it? It doesn't matter. We Americans, after we are blown to smithereens and the constitution with us, can reflect that we behaved in an unselfish and generous matter, that we wrecked the republic, but assuaged some anguish, brushed away some tears. Great is sentimentalism! Let it dissolve the nation! Let it rip the good ship United States from heel to bulwarks! Ere we sink below the surface, we can be cheered by the assurance that anyhow we were kind and compassionate. We shall have the martyr's reward.

Such mush as this is not going to determine a grave question of state, fortunately. Out west our president has been speaking good healthy American common sense. Listen to him! He says he is more concerned for quality than quantity of immigration. And he warns:

"This land of ours has little to fear from those who attack from outside our borders, but we must guard very zealously against those who work within our borders to destroy the very institutions which have given them hospitality."

Yes, the doleful immigrant weeping on our threshold in manner to touch our hearts, a few years hence will be sticking his tongue out at our constitution, demanding that our property be confiscated to be given to him, pleading his alienship to avoid conscription in the next war, refusing to speak English and preferring his own outlandish tongue.

Yes, sentimentality can ruin a nation. Those who built ours were hard-headed Anglo-Saxons who would die for freedom, but who unlike Esau would not be so foolish as to barter their birthright for a mess of pottage.—Minneapolis Journal.

The Secret of Self-Government.

In view of John Bull's ingrained conservatism, the motion considered by the labor party's conference to the effect "that the royal family is no longer a necessary part of the British constitution," must be taken with a grain of salt.

If we should actually live to see abolition of British royalty by decree of parliament, it will be something new in the line of bloodless revolutions.

The amazing and encouraging thing about the proposal is that there is room for peaceable discussion of it. It is argued in broad daylight, not whispered in the darkness of conspiracy. Its advocates are respectable citizens and members of parliament, and there is no one to send them to jail on a charge of treason or of "lese majeste."

As a rule, dynasties are not abolished without armed revolution. Kingship is invested with a sacred character that will not even permit argument. To question the right of kings, ordinarily, is made a high crime against the security of the state.

It is England's good fortune that, since the days of William and Mary, royalty owes its legitimacy strictly to a parliamentary title and not to divine and "indefeasible" right. The crown bestowed by parliament can be taken away by parliament.

The last secret of self-government is the right of open and peaceful discussion of any existing law, even of the fundamental law of the land. To make any institution sacred, so that mere discusion of it becomes treason, is to invite rebellion sooner or later.

Here is a curious contrast. Monarchical England peaceably debates the advisability of handing the king his crown with a polite "what's your hurry?" But in that paradise of the plain people, soviet Russia, any discussion of the soviet's divine right to misgovern the country is "treason to the proletariat."

What is a self-governing nation, anyway?—Milwaukee Sentinel.

THE YOUNG LADY ACROSS THE WAY

The young lady across the way says the spectators must be terribly disappointed when one boxer knocks out another in the 12th round, say, when they've paid to see 15 rounds and she should think they'd demand their money back.

Just Take a Look at Mexico.

One of the most important bits of news out of Mexico in a long time has won only scant attention. Mexico has a budget. That is significant enough, but what gives it emphasis is the circumstance that it is the first budget a Mexican government has presented for more than a decade. Not since 1912 has there been offered to the Mexican people a comprehensive statement of their financial position.

It has become increasingly clear that President Obregon, however stanchly he stands by his promises on the land, labor and oil issues in the face of American criticism, seriously strives to serve the Mexican people who receive substantial evidence of their progress from time to time. The new budget of national expenses shows a telling decrease in military and naval appropriations, many other economies and an increase in expenditures planned for public education, until that item now represents 15 per cent of the budget.

On the whole the ancient contempt with which many Americans have been inclined to regard Mexico seems no longer to have much substance. It cannot be said that Mexico has been coddled into reform; she has won it for herself and in the face of surprising and discouraging conditions.

If, as all men hope, the current negotiations terminate in an official resumption of relations between Mexico and the United States, it will be a new and self-conscious Mexican people we shall find as our neighbors.—Detroit News.

MEN AND THINGS.

One of the queer things we run across is the tendency of some peoples to spell a word one way and pronounce it another. The English are great offenders along this line, but they are amateurs alongside the Welshmen These able and esteemed gentlemen, if we may judge from the results, take a handful of letters and throw them on the ground Whatever order they fall in is accepted, without further debate or argument, as a new word They are then at liberty to pronounce it whatever way they like If it satisfies them, however, we guess we have no ground for complaint.

So many bricks are thrown at the league of nations that it is encouraging now and then to find that it is doing some really excellent work. American financiers recently obersubscribed a 25 million dollar issue of Austrian bonds. These are part of a 120 million dollar offering that has been made in different countries, under a league of nations plan for stabilizing the Austrian monetary system, relieving the government of the necessity of having to print money whenever it needed some more for the payment of running expenses The result will be to make possible the entire reconstruction of the economic life of Austria, a worthwhile job.

No plan has ever had such a strong appeal to the imagination of people who have little knowledge of monetary system as that of government control of the printing of money. It is a good bit like free trade, the reasoning is all on the side of the proposition, but it is a theory that does not work. All Germany and Austria have needed to do, when their revenues fell short, was to start their printing presses, and as these could always be run faster than the money would depreciate they could turn the trick. If each of us had his little printing press, we could enjoy a brief span of prosperity ourselves, but as the only value money has in the hands of an individual is its ability to be traded for goods, one is in a sad predicament when he cannot find anyone with goods to trade with. That fact has browen down all paper money systems in the past, and it always will.

A look thru the catalogs of the book publishing houses shows a surprising number of volumes on religious topics Ask the average person and he would say offhand that these would find a limited circulation because the public taste, as shown by library circulation reports, runs to fiction, with biography usually standing second. Who read these religious books? The number of them is a fair indication that they are widely bought. They cover a wide range of subjects from pure theology to biblical interpretation Here's a real mystery.

If one may judge from casual remarks by those interested in politics it is a toss up whether the democratic national convention will make the issue Darwinism, as Mr. Bryan defines it, or down with prohibition as exemplified by Al Smith. Either might be expected to have a strong appeal to a lot of democrats, and about as many persons feel very strongly on one subject as on the other. But what a face it is to describe both Mr. Bryan and Al Smith as democrats!

The influence of the moving pictures on story-writing is one of the interesting things of the literary world. To go with a bang the picture must not allow interest to lag. There is no place in it for description of scenery or for lengthy and illuminating views of the workings of the minds of the character. Action and characterization are its outstanding features. This has a tremendous effect upon public taste, and the short story writers seem to be trying their best to meet it by running their action in high most of the way.

Industry and commerce are so divided nowadays that we have about as many little subdivisions of that world as there is among the professions Trade publications that speak a jargon familiar to and understandable by its readers but often reading like Greek to the rest of us are many. The whole effect seems to be of a lot of little worlds that bind together varying numbers in the keenest sort of interest and which touch one another only at a very few points.

There is something to be said for war. When a nation acquires territory from another it proceeds to develop cities wherever the government chooses to locate them, and having in mind the future importance of them are able to lay them out symmetrically and beautifully. In a number of parts of the globe where these conditions prevail, the new owners are adopting the Washington style of building a city, rectangles with wide streets diagonally superimposed, making a mall and adding to the beauty of it all.
